PROFITEERS REVEALED

After the first world war, we, the people, decided that if another world conflict occurred there would be no war profiteers.

Now, public investigation reveals that the first world war profiteers were pikers compared to the crop that grew and thrived off the unwary public at government expense during the world unpleasantness completed a year ago.

Comptroller General Lindsay Warren has denounced as "damnable" the "widespread practice" of army officers obtaining lucrative jobs from war producers whose government contracts they helped to draft and settle while in the service.

The practice of war profiteering also apparently extends into the higher branches of government. The most interesting investigation of the activities of persons in high places is the probe of the alleged war munitions activities of Rep. A. J. May, Kentucky democrat and chairman of the house military committee, who has denied that he profited from his connections with a mid-western munitions concern.

The boys who made the money will probably never be punished, but at least the people should know that a man's position is no guarantee of honesty.

CALDWELL WILL CONDUCT RODEO

CALDWELL (Special)—The stage is again set for another thrill-packed night rodeo in Caldwell. With the addition of 700 new seats, swelling the capacity to grand stand and bleachers to a total of 3500 seats, the rodeo executives have done everything possible to accommodate the throng of fans expected to pack the gates each night of the show, August 7, 8, 9 and 10.

J. C. (Doc) Sorenson, who has furnished the stock and served as arena director for the past 11 years, reports greater interest among top-notch rodeo talent and specialty performers than ever before and he predicted that the riding, roping, bulldogging and other arena events will rate with the top shows of the nation.

Increased prices of from $3000 to $4000 for the four main events, and the lure of a chance to perform in the Madison Square Garden's show will bring many of the world's champions to Caldwell, Sorenson said.

Each night's performance will include 12 thrilling events, consisting of championship contests in bronc riding, bareback bronc riding, Brahma bull riding, bulldogging, calf-roping, Brahma bull fighting, fancy trick riding and roping by world-famed arena performers, high aerial acts, Roman jumping and others, all topped off with music by the Boise Valley Rodeo band of Nampa, and special drills by members of local saddle clubs.

Popular among the acts will be Jack Knapp, rodeo clown and bull fighter, who will keep the audience amused by his chatter and antics and who also will detract the Brahma away from the demounted buckaroos so that they may escape the vicious horns of the brutes.

An all-horse parade from the business district to the rodeo park, in which about 300 Boise valley riders are expected to participate will precede each night's performance. A special section in the bleachers will be reserved for the riders.

In addition to the rodeo, the American United shows will again hold forth on the carnival grounds adjacent to rodeo park, opening on Monday, August 5. Many special attractions have been provided to amuse both young and old.

The rodeo program will open each night at 8:15 under the brilliant lights of the rodeo arena in clear

DUTCH GIVE THANKS FOR OLD CLOTHING

Mrs. Gerrit Stam has received additional letters of thanks from Dutch people who received used clothing from Malheur county residents.

Mrs. G. H. Palmers wrote from Stompetersen, The Netherlands, as follows:

"Our heartfelt thanks for the package you sent us. How sweet of you to send us the tea, cocoa, soap and all the other things.

"I am enclosing a photo of the twins the way they look when they go to bed in their American night clothes.

"The coat I received from you I made over and turned the material inside out and it looks like new now and people ask me where I got such a beautiful coat.

"It still is hopeless here. No clothing to buy anywhere yet and it doesn't look like any chance for the better. But my children are healthy and that is the main thing.

"To you and all the good American people many, many thanks."

Mrs. P. Dieleman of Axel, Zeeland, Netherlands said "Yesterday we received a package from you. How happy you made us. You will never know. Thanks a thousand times.

"The coats are too short for me. You see I am rather tall, but I am going to make them over into coats for the boys. From the linings I can make a shirt for each of them and the light colored lining will make good shorts.

"The shirt was a little large. I will make this smaller and turn the collar and it will be like new.

"The dress fits me exactly. I'll put a pair of nice buttons on and it will be a good looking dress to wear on Sunday.

"And that wonderful cake of soap we found in the package. One would almost forget we ever had soap like that. All we get once a month is a small piece of household soap and a pack of washing powder.

"We don't get ahead very fast. In fact it seems to us we are going back instead. Butter, fat and meat are scarcer again than before and clothing. If the stores have anything we have to stand in line for hours and then just when we reach our turn they are sold out.

I can use everything you sent and many, many thanks, again."

BREEDERS GROUP IS INCORPORATED

Articles of incorporation were filed last week by the Malheur County Dairy Breeders association, non-profit organization created to handle business details of the artificial insemination program for dairy cattle in this area.

Incorporators are Wendell Richmond of Ontario and James A. Peterson, Elver A. Nielsen, F. W. Sherwood and G. C. Vest of Nyssa.

The bulls which will serve this association are owned by the Oregon Dairy Breeders association and are kept at Corvallis. It is estimated that 8000 cows will be bred through this program next year.

LIGHTNING HITS ELECTRIC LINES

Lightning struck six structures of the California-Pacific Utilities company one and one-half miles west of Durkee at 6:30 Friday night, broke the main connection with the Idaho Power company and caused the discontinuance of service to some parts of the utility system for several hours.

The storm results was described by company men as the worst suffered by the system in the last 20 years.

At one point a two-pole structure was hit, the wire was broken and had fallen to the ground, opening the circuit with the Idaho Power company.

Crews of both companies worked until 5 o'clock Saturday morning to restore service, which had to be discontinued for several hours for Baker mills and for larger users in the LaGrande district.
