SECURITY PROGRAM IS 10 YEARS OLD

The old-age and survivors insurance program of the social security administration completed its 10th year December 31, 1946. Vernon A. Welo, manager, announced in a year-end statement.

"The social security program," Mr. Welo said, "has come of age. Today, 1,855,000 Americans receive monthly insurance payments totaling $31,360,000 each month. These payments are making a very real contribution to the economic well-being of communities throughout the nation. Of even greater moment, they are giving a large measure of independence and security to retired workers and dependents of deceased workers."

"The steady and substantial growth of old-age and survivors insurance is shown by the national figures for 1946 as contrasted with the same figures for 1945. In the year just past, individuals receiving payment increased by 415,000 over 1945, and monthly payments rose from $23,801,000 to $31,360,000.

After 10 years of social security, 74,000,000 Americans now have wage credits in the system; 85,000,000 account number cards, the worker's key to his social security protection, have been issued, and 43,000,000 Americans have either fully or currently insured status. Both retirement and survivors' insurance payments may be made on the account of a fully insured worker, and limited survivor's payments on that of a currently insured person."

The national growth of old-age and survivors insurance is reflected in the payments made in the area served by the La Grande office of the social security administration. Explaining that his figures are subject to minor revision, Mr. Welo said 1,117 men, women and children receive payments of $20,183.72 a month, a rate of $261,964.64 a year, representing an increase of 23 per cent for the year 1946.

Summing up the social security situation, Mr. Welo said there is one serious cause of concern to the Board's field offices: some people do not know their rights under the old-age and survivors insurance program, and so may lose some benefits through failure to act at the right time.

To correct this situation he issued the following advice: "Whenever a person, who has worked at any time in a job covered by the law, reaches the age of 65, he should come in to see us and find out how to protect his benefits rights, even though he does not plan to retire. Whenever a worker dies, after working for some period in jobs covered by the law, some member of his family should communicate promptly with the nearest office of the social security board. This is the only way to make sure that no benefits are lost."
