Something New

For the first time in the history of the United States a President has vetoed a bill passed by Congress for reduction of taxes. Traditionally, it has been considered proper for Congress to hold the purse strings and determine expenditures. Consequently, when Congress has spoken on the subject the President has always accepted the verdict with regard to lowering taxes. This time the bill passed both Houses with a large majority and still was vetoed by the President—something new.

Financial experts are now predicting a considerable surplus in the budget at the end of the fiscal year. This happens because more income from taxes is being realized than was expected. Moreover, Congress has succeeded in cutting down proposed expenditures a great deal. Consequently, the reduction of four billion dollars in taxes could have been made and at the same time a large payment on the national debt.

Soaring Tax Load

The total tax bill of the nation is now running just about one-third of the total amount of money earned by the people of the nation. This means that one-third of the average income of the average individual is going for taxes. It means that one-third of every man's income directly or indirectly goes back to the government in taxes. This is a dangerously high tax rate for peace time, and if continued can be ruinous to the economy of this nation. In fact, no nation can be expected to prosper under that kind of tax load—not for very long.

President Truman, in commenting on the tax bill, said there was already sufficient cash available for "necessary investment and business expansion." It should be remembered however, that America didn't become great by making only what the government considered "necessary investment and business expansion." The government did not pronounce as "necessary" the development of our great western railways.

Neither did government pronounce "necessary" the development of the great automobile industry. The government did not pronounce "necessary" the production of a cheap automobile made possible by Henry Ford, General Motors and others who had similar dreams and who made capital investments beyond what the government announced as "necessary."

No Brakes Needed

From personal contact with industrialists and financiers I am thoroughly convinced that new ventures are entirely too few. Much capital is being held back because of various discouragements including high taxes and uncertain industrial relations. Had these brakes been on during preceding generations the development of the railroads, the automobile industry, the refrigeration industry, and the airplane industry. Our nation would have been much poorer today and we would have been living on a lower income level.

If we are going to have a prosperous economy ten years from now, taxes should be lightened immediately and industrial relations tremendously improved. We must look ahead to anticipate our needs. We can go along making "necessary investment and business expansion" and move into poverty and mediocrity, slipping gradually backward. If our nation is to remain great, free men must be able to dream their own dreams and make new ventures.

"According to word received from the Oregon state office, the Malheur county committee is now authorized to proceed with the 1947 agricultural conservation program once more," Glen L. Hutchinson, chairman of the local AAA committee, announced.

"Due to the possibility of drastically reduced appropriations by congress for soil conservation work this year, the county committee was unable to continue making commitments of funds during June and July," Mr. Hutchinson stated. "However, now that final action has come and an appropriation has been made which is only a small decrease from last year, it is now possible to again issue purchase orders for delivery of superphosphate by local dealers as well as carry on normal soil conservation activities."

Mr. Hutchinson reminded also that any farmers planning on projects that will earn payments in 1947 should arrange with the county office for inspection to insure approval of their work.

4-H YOUNGSTERS
GOING TO CAMP

Thirty-one Malheur county 4-H club members will leave for Payette lakes Saturday for a five-day period of instruction and recreation at the University of Idaho forestry camp, which has been loaned for the 4-H club camp, E. M. Hauser, county club agent, said Monday.

The Malheur county youngsters will be joined by smaller groups from Washington and Gem counties in Idaho, Hauser said.

A program of instruction in crafts and recreation is being drafted, the club agent said, with club leaders carrying on most of the instruction. Miss Miriam J. Black, home demonstration agent, now on vacation, is expected back in time to join the group. She will carry on classes in swimming. Nature hikes will be conducted by a forester, Hauser said.

The Malheur county group will make the trip in a school bus driven by Howard Hatch of Adrian.

The Nyssa and Adrian youngsters who will attend the camp are Larry Dwyer, Robert Hartley, Georgia Ward, Marcelyn McKinley, Shirley Sparks, Lloyd Bush, Raymond Thompson, Jacqueline Smith, Donna Lee Steelman and Kathryn Hester.
