

COUNTY SERVICE OFFICER UPHELD

(Continued from Page One) the meeting, said "Everybody was well satisfied with the committee's report. Nothing more would have been said if he hadn't followed it up with an editorial". The meeting resulted in a vote of confidence for Anderson and denunciation of Smith. Possible violence was avoided when Anderson shouted "I'll call a policeman" as a group of the veterans rushed the Eastern Oregon Observer photographer, W. C. Robinson, who was taking a picture in violation of an edict issued before the meeting that no photographs should be taken. The picture was taken as Graham was speaking against the editorial. Shouting, "Let's bust that camera," two of the men started toward Robinson. "I'll call a policeman", Anderson interjected, rushing to the door, and the men returned to their seats. Anderson later commented that his purpose in starting to call the police was solely to prevent violence. Vigorously defending the county service office as a necessary aid to veterans, Graham charged that "Smith is not in a position to know was made of the fact that Ontario has the only VA office in the county and has no funds for travel, while the county officer maintains offices in Nyssa and Vale. "Everyone in this room is a potential customer of the county service officer", Arthur Rouse of Nyssa said, holding that there will be a continuing need for the office. Commenting on the editorial's contention that his office was an unnecessary burden to taxpayers, Anderson stated that his salary is $200 a month, plus $200 a year expense money. "With 3000 veterans of three wars living in the county, the cost is less than one per cent per veteran," Anderson asserted. Six of the eight posts of veterans' organizations in the county were represented at the meeting including the Vale VFW, the Nyssa American Legion and VFW and the Ontario DAV, Legion and VFW.

CORN AFFECTED BY TIME OF PICKING

Sweet corn picked during the late morning or afternoon is sweeter than that harvested early in the morning. That is a timely reminder from County Agent Harry Sandquist, who explains that sugar is stored in the corn during the day and changes to starch at night. A second pointer for getting top quality in home grown garden products is, to remove the tops from root crops very soon after digging. While in the ground, the plant feeds from the soil; but when the plant is dug, the tops draw upon the food stored in the root and thus reduce its value. This applies to all root crops, including beets, carrots, turnips and parsnips for example. If ground is available in good shape for planting, this is a good time to plant some fall spinach, mustard, turnips, radishes and lettuce. Mr. Sandquist adds, "These are nutritious foods that will be helpful to the family budget later on. A letter received by Sandquist from R. Ralph Clark, extension horticulturist at OSC, comments that gardens are looking very good now in most sections of Oregon. "The gardens which were planted following the wet period in the spring have grown exceptionally fast and are giving good returns for the time and expense involved", Clark says.

Returns Home—
After a visit of 10 days in Ogden and Salt Lake City, where they attended the L.D.S. centennial, Mrs. Campbell Beyer and Mrs. Burnall Brown returned home Sunday. Miss Marian Grace Brown, who accompanied them to Utah, remained in Twin Falls to visit her aunt, Mrs. Solon Lewis.

Gather Berries—
Mrs. Barney Wilson, Mrs. C. H. Bennett, Mrs. H. H. Kingery, Mrs. Andrew McGinnis and Mr. and Mrs. Charles McConnell returned Sunday from a three-day trip to the mountains near Tamarack, where they picked huckleberries.

Visitors Leave—
Mrs. W. E. Bothamley and her two children, who have spent the past six weeks visiting at the home of Mrs. Bothamley's mother, Mrs. Hilda Tensen, and her sister, Mrs. Grant Rinehart, returned this week to their home in San Fernando.

This fellow is living proof that "the way to a man's heart is through his stomach." But he can worry less about his future wife's ability to cook if he will furnish her with an electric range. Electric cooking is so simple and fast that even a novice can be a good cook. Automatic timers and thermostat controls on the oven make recipe results turn out uniformly, while the kitchen remains cool and clean. Homemakers like the idea of putting dinner in the oven of an electric range, setting the controls and then forgetting about it until mealtime... the leisure time is a real pleasure dividend. Ask your dealer to show you the new models... you'll be convinced that an electric range provides better living.

Electricity can serve you better if you provide more circuits and outlets. Insist on adequate wiring when you build or remodel.
