A campaign to enlist young men into the ranks of the famous 82nd airborne division, a part of America's peacetime army, is now underway in Oregon. T/Sgt. Jesse D. Holland, officer in charge of the Ontario main station, army and air force recruiting service, announced. This drive is aimed primarily at high school graduates interested in working and serving in a seasoned paratroop outfit.

This regiment is presently carrying out detailed training in winter operations at Pine Camp, New York, and it is felt that many qualified young men with ambition will welcome the opportunity to serve with this regiment in all its activities.

Sgt. Holland reiterated that any young American seeking adventure and the chance to better himself physically and mentally should not overlook this offer to enlist directly into the 82nd airborne division.
