HITS AND MISSES

We are making extensive preparations for the re-opening of school, but we are making little preparation for the safety of the youngsters. Lines restricting the use of parking space at the "Y" have not been painted and pedestrian lanes on Main street, if ever planned, have not been painted by the state.

The disgusting and critical situation in which the world finds itself today is reported by commentators to be due to the secret agreements reached at Yalta, Teheran, etc. The western powers seem to be having about the same bad luck with the Russians in the present discussions. Maybe they would be more successful if they made their discussions public and thus receive the advice of us "ringside experts".

Principal Dennis Patch has built a press box, which he intends to call "the dog house," for football games. It will house newspaper reporters and radio announcers, whom he apparently wants to feel at home.

Henry Wallace is probably gaining more votes by withstanding the egg and tomato barages than by what he is offering in the way of advice on the world situation. Persons who would throw eggs and vegetables would not know anything about the psychological effect of their actions.

What this country needs is a 100-cent-dollar president.
