This Lamp Keeps You Warm..

The infrared radiation from a heat lamp provides so much comfort around the home. Relaxing, soothing, quick heat relieves muscular aches and pains and you'll find dozens of other uses for heat lamps. They'll dry hair, nail polish, glue, keep baby warm at dressing time, thaw pipes. And heat lamps cost so very little to buy and use.

On the farm, besides all the home uses, heat lamps can help make farming more profitable. These are just a few things the heat lamp can do . . . warm brooders for poultry, pigs, lambs . . . warm laying houses . . . dry paint, milk cans, seeds, feed . . . protect pump house valves, other exposed machinery . . . warm oil in tractor, truck or car for faster starting.

Your dealer can show you in two minutes the soothing effects of the heat lamp and he can supply you with two models — both inexpensive.

If you're the type that tans under the summer sun, you can enjoy all year-round tan from a sunlamp. Just like the heat lamp, it's inexpensive and fits in any ordinary AC lamp socket.

Is Yours a PREFERRED Home?

If your property is well-kept, well cared for, you may be living within the charmed circle of GENERAL OF AMERICA "preferred risk" fire insurance protection. Under this newest and most logical plan thousands of GENERAL policyholders have realized substantial savings.

The GENERAL INSURANCE COMPANY, "the Company of preferred risks," is one of the nation's strongest capital stock insurance companies. You may be eligible for this preferred fire insurance protection. Ask us . . . no obligation, of course.

*"Preferred Risk" fire insurance means that only good risks are accepted—the bad are rejected. Obviously, losses are few. This lower loss ratio has been reflected, wherever possible, in lower net fire insurance costs to owners of "preferred properties."

All types of commercial properties, as well as residences, are eligible for "preferred risk" fire protection.
