Like a comedian stepping into an open elevator shaft, one thing seems to lead to another. The armed services have been working overtime to perfect rocket missiles... now they need a place to shoot them. All they require is a range about 3000 miles long where no one is going to be bothered by the "Whoosh!" of passing rockets. Finding an unoccupied strip 3000 miles long in the U. S. these days is almost as difficult as breaking up a filibuster. The experts say the climate of this long range shooting gallery shouldn't be too cold or rainy. If you know where they can go for these conditions, get in touch with Washington.

A 97-year-old Indian Chief in Tenn. tried to scalp his wife. Apparently the lady made a few cutting remarks. If car breakdowns and troubles are putting you into the same mood as the Chief, bring your car in for advice, service or repairs to our experts at HERRIMAN MOTOR CO. When your carburetor goes wrong your engine is getting too much or too little gas. Either way your car won't operate right.
