BUILDS PRIZE BEEF HERD.

In only three years a prize herd of registered Shorthorns has replaced dairy cows on the Roy L. Harris ranch near Prineville. (Shown are Mr. and Mrs. Harris and a son, Douglas, with a Shorthorn bull calf.) Building the herd of purebred beef cattle was a slow and costly task—but Harris' wife and their seven children backed his progressive planning. The First National Bank of Prineville aided in financing that speeded the transition. Today Harris' Shorthorns bring fancy prices from America's breeders—new income that is helping build Oregon.

GEORGE KYLLO REPLACES STUMPS WITH TURKEYS.

Young George Kylo couldn't find a job in 1933, so he obtained 105 acres of logged-off land near Molalla and went to work on the army of stumps. His pluck attracted Marie Koltch. She became Mrs. Kylo in 1934. They tried turkey raising, but lost money the first year. However, encouraged by advice and financial help from the Molalla branch of the First National, they stuck to it. Today they market thousands of turkeys annually and grow feed and seed crops. Hard work and sound advice are building a good venture for George and Marie...as progressive businesses are helping build Oregon.

BUILDING OREGON
TOGETHER

Oregon's prosperity is in direct ratio to the well-being of each of her people. Persons shown here have the vision, energy and initiative that brings individual success—and keeps our state growing. In each instance constructive service provided by banking offices in the First National Group has been of real assistance.

We believe sincerely that our most important function as a bank is to make financial services widely available. Thus we help build Oregon—family by family, farm by farm, and business by business. Come in and let us show you how we can serve you.

THE KAUTTUS BUILD BOATS.

Elo N. Kauttu builds unusual sturdiness into commercial fishing craft. The Kauttus' two-year-old plant (Mrs. Kauttu is bookkeeper-painter) is at Jeffers Gardens on the Lewis and Clark river near Astoria. There, with his six craftsmen, Kauttu puts into practice ideas he developed as a fisherman and as an employee of the area's famed builders of Columbia River gillnet type craft. Made to carry big fish loads, his 29-foot boats—fashioned of oak, Douglas fir and Port Orford cedar—withstanding the Pacific's most belligerent moods. With assistance from the First National, Kauttu helps Oregon grow by meeting fishermen's boat needs.
