NEWS VIEWS

By Lew Herriman
It's good to hear the economy bloc in the Senate is trying to trim the national budget. We are all for economy and there are probably plenty of rough edges in the nation's spending plans where a little whittling would be an improvement. It seems most legislators advocate economy, but getting down to specific cases is tougher than tracking down a mirage. No representative wants to cut financial corners if he thinks it'll cost him votes at the next election. That's partly the voters' fault, too. If we want economy we'll have to vote for men who have the courage to get five-cent's worth out of a nickel.

A Chester, Pa., man gulped down a live one and a half pound hard-shelled crab on a dare. He'll probably walk sideways for the next few weeks.
