Mayor Urges Work For Handicapped

Cooperation of all local and county groups in the task of providing suitable employment for disabled veterans and other persons was urged this week by George C. Henneman, city council, in speaking for the chairman of the annual observance of National Employ the Physically Handicapped week, October 2 to 8.

Mr. Henneman pointed out that October 2 to 8 has been set aside by order of President Truman for a concentrated drive to reduce unemployment among former GI's and civilians who have disabilities which represent employment handicaps.

"The welfare of these neighbors of ours should be predominant in the minds of all of us," Mr. Henneman said. "It should not be necessary to call the community's attention to the needs of our disabled citizens. Yet we do forget, sometimes, the American men and women whose service to their country on the battlefronts and war-essential production lines left them handicapped for life."

Mr. Henneman called for cooperation among townspeople, industry, labor unions, farmers and other groups in solving the problems. In posing the challenge presented by disabled veterans and civilians, he cited their desire to work, their low rate of absenteeism and their efficient production when suitably placed on jobs in line with their remaining abilities.

Handicapped Child Program Scheduled

A Malheur county institute for study of exceptional children will be held in Nyssa October 3, school officials announced this week. Specialists will be here to discuss the various phases of the exceptional child problem.

The program will be opened at 9 a. m., with Mrs. Kathryn Claypool, county school superintendent, offering introductions. The last afternoon session will be opened at 2:30, with adjournment scheduled for 3:15.

Speakers include Walter E. Snyder, director, division of special education, state department of education; Mrs. Verna B. Hogg, consulting psychologist, state department of education; Miss Dora Crouter, consultant, state department of education and state school for the blind; Miss Esther Lipton, consultant, education of crippled children, state department of education; Dr. Frederick O. Graeber, health officer of Malheur county; Miss Madeline Bowers, consultant in speech correction, state department of education, and John Taylor, director, speech and hearing program, state department of education and staff consultant, Oregon state school for the deaf.
