

Dimmick Secures Arabian Stallion

Wisok, a four-year-old bright bay Arabian stallion, owned by the United States government remount agency, has been sold to Neil Dimmick, former government remount agent, living southwest of Nyssa.

This marks the end of a 30-year area of remount service to horse-men in the United States.

At the time of the first world war, the U. S. Army was compelled to use inferior riding horses, for after searching throughout the nation, it was discovered that a large percentage of available horses were either "coarse, small or weedy". The army remount was created for the improve ment of breeding of better riding horses.

As the average rancher could not afford to go to the centers where better breeding horses were available, officials decided that through government purchases and donations, suitable stallions would be shipped to areas over the nation, where they would be available to those interested in the improvement of their riding stock. This plan of the U. S. government remount service has worked economically and efficiently for the past 30 year, serving the ranchers and livestock men.

However, the government has deemed it necessary to cut expenses, and the remount division is discontinued. In order to keep the fine stock in the country, the remount agents are being permitted to buy the animals if they so desire.

The horse bought by Mr. Dimmick has been located on his farm for over a year, under supervision of the remount service. This Arabian stallion, one of the fine horses captured in Austria by General Patton's third arm, was shipped to the United States as part of the war reparations. Wisok's sire, Witez II is internationally known. He sold for over $8,000 this year.

Soilaid-Fertilizer and Soil Builder

Produced at Cody, Wyo. and sold by dealers in every town in the valley.

This good clean product composed of minerals valuable to the soil, including a guarantee of 30% sulphur and not more than 5% moisture is proving to be much better than if we used 100% sulphur, as all of the minerals contained in soilaid are soluble with the exception of 3 1/2%.

We have shown a sound colored film over the Boise Valley many times that was made by the University of Mo., under the supervision of Dr. Wm. Albrecht, one of the most famous soil scientists in the U. S. This picture was paid for by the Phillips 66 Petroleum Co. Dr. Albrecht shows us how the soil was broken down by nature from rock and that it originally contained 5% minerals, such as are contained in Soilaid, but that we have mined the soil rather than have managed it—that we have been interested in tonnage and not in nutritional value. This picture shows how the crippled children are the results of lack of minerals in the soil—he says this is not theory but facts, arrived at over 30 years of experiments—a nation is as strong as it's soil is rich—we are what we eat. The very fine crops produced, the wonderful flavor and to know that we are following the plan outlined by the Soil Conservation by growing the crops to be plowed under—to produce organic matter and nitrogen in the soil.

There are two deposits in Wyoming containing almost the same minerals for the reason that they both originated in the Yellowstone Park and was carried out with the hot sulphur water. One is produced at Cody, Wyo. and known as Soilaid—the other is produced at Thermopolis, Wyo. and is called Soil Sulphaid. We are showing the analysis of both products for your information.
