Hermann Talks Of Eye Trouble

Dr. Hermann attributed this condition to the fact that residents of Nyssa generally are students and therefore do much reading and the glare caused by the intense light in school rooms.

Basing his percentages on the patients who have called on him during his comparatively short practice in Nyssa, Dr. Hermann said the average was 14 years, with the range from 6 to 18 years. Forty-one per cent wore glasses and 58 per cent were without lenses.

Thirty-seven per cent had lowered vision as soon as a person looks at something. In the second stage were 88 per cent with loss of visual reserve at near points. In the third stage were 55 per cent with loss of visual acuity at far points. The fourth and final stage is loss of visual acuity at near points, a true myopia. Lenses were needed for correction in 70 per cent of these cases. Lenses and visual training were needed in 27 per cent of the cases; lenses alone would not suffice.

Fifteen per cent of the patients could not be helped by lenses in any way, Dr. Hermann said. Visual training is the only possible method by which their visual efficiency could be restored.

Three per cent were idiopathic in nature; that is either they were born near-sighted or far-sighted, if such a thing is psychologically possible, or it was brought on by early fevers or some other unknown factor. Eleven per cent were anisometropes; that is they had compensated for their visual handicap by letting one eye become near-sighted and used it for all near work while they became far-sighted in the other eye and used it for all their distant work.

Dr. Hermann classed the minus lens as a bad lens and the plus lens as a good one. The minus lens uses up the visual reserve and demands more, so that its use should be avoided as soon as possible. The plus lens is good because it helps build up visual reserve and helps a person to see better. The plus lens may be removed at any time and still the person have perfect vision.

Why this isn't your 1950 model car

This gasoline buggy, now safely tucked away in dusty photograph albums, was quite a car in its day. It buzzed along at 20 miles an hour, had a jaunty, rakish air, and the people who could afford to buy one thought it was perfectly wonderful.

In fact, it was so good it might still be the car you drive but for one reason. Competition. Healthy competition among both automotive and oil companies that resulted in constantly better, lower-cost automobiles and steadily improved oils and gasolines.

For one example: Here at Standard of California, we've pioneered literally thousands of improvements in gasolines, motor oils and other petroleum products since the days of the horseless carriage. Those you use in your car today are unsurpassed anywhere. The world's first service station built by Standard in 1907 has grown, including outlets of all companies, to a network of more than a quarter of a million stations across the country. This progress, spurred by competition, will not stop. Just since the war, we've spent more than $450,000,000 in plants and facilities to serve you better.
