Herd Testing Is Important Plan

Many dairymen find that knowledge gained through production testing, if put to use in herd management, will produce a much greater net than money spent in any other way on the dairy herd. Every dairymen should test every year, not to find out how good his herd is, but to find out which cows are not paying their way," according to H. P. Ewalt, extension dairy specialist at Oregon State college.

With the development of dairying in Malheur county and the lower Snake river area and the declining margin in profits, it is even more important that a farmer know whether his cows are returning any labor income, or whether he is just donating his time to relieve the cow of her milk supply. Don Anderson, Malheur county extension agent, states that farmers spend an average of 14 ten-hour days' time with every cow in his herd during the year.

Fourteen cows producing an average of 200 pounds of butterfat a year will return approximately $1500 income over their feed costs, whereas 14 cows producing an average of 350 pounds of butterfat will return approximately $3000 above their feed costs. This figure represents a farmer's labor income. At a 400 pound level of production, the same number of cows will show a return of well over $4000.

The answer is not how many cows, but how much they produce to make the dairy enterprise financially profitable.

There are openings for many more dairymen for both standard and owner-sampler methods of production testing in the Malheur dairy herd-improvement program. Interested dairymen may contact the county agent's office at Ontario or any present member of the Malheur D. H. I. A. for more information about the dairy herd production testing program, according to Anderson.

Construction Cost In Co. Estimated

Malheur county home owners will spend an estimated $22,000 on repair and modernization of non-farm dwellings during 1950, according to estimates just released by the Title Council of America.

"Lower wholesale prices for building products and growing stress on the use of quality materials should greatly benefit Oregon home owners planning repairs this year," declared A. T. Wintersgill, chairman of the council's residential construction committee.

Approximately one of every three homes in this region will be redecorated, either inside or out, during the year, the report showed. One in 10 will have plumbing repaired, bathrooms tiled or showers installed. Roofs will be replaced or repaired on one of every eight dwellings, according to the report. Carpentry work will be done on six of every 100, and one of every 20 is due for miscellaneous interior repairs.

Home repairs will be easier on the 1950 family budget because of a decline of more than five per cent in wholesale costs of building materials, in comparison with prices at the beginning of 1949, the report said. Home owners also will be able to insist on such quality materials as slay tile for repair work, as a result of the present buyer's market, it pointed out.

Expenditures throughout the United States for home repair and modernization this year will total $2,350,000,000 to $2,900,000,000, the report estimated.

The nation is now up to its ring finger in that annual matrimonial sweepstakes listed under "June Brides". We never could figure out exactly why June is such a heavy traffic month in the middle aisle department. Maybe it's because it's the climax of the Spring and just before the Fall... or it may be that many people don't like to take their vacations alone. Anyway, it's the ocean blossom and flowing gown climax for the nation's dew-eyed brides. Bridegrooms also figure in the ceremony, but if you read the fashion columns you get the idea they're lucky to be in the supporting cast.

A Newspaper headline reads, "Dollar Lack Top Problem, Experts say". That's one of the sagest observations we've ever heard from an expert. Take the word of the experts. You just can't beat the Fifty For for good looks and smooth performance. It's fifty ways new. And once you try it you'll be convinced it's the car for you.
