"Zeke" Watches The Girls

A mysterious "Ezekiel Adam" wrote to the editor a few weeks ago when high school girls clad in shorts and blouses frolicked on the school lawn during P. E. period, at a time when the weather was warm and balmy and the editor was too busy to comment.

"Zeke" told the "dear ed" that "You tell us to look out for the kids when drivin'. I want to kal ur atenshun to a trafic hazard near the skul hous. ever time I go bi, thar the yard is ful of big bar leg girls. now when u can not keep ur atenshun on 2 things at the sam tim, the stering wheal is liabl to get negh-ted. now we taxpaires have built a milion $ skul house for them kids, why can't they sta in thar part of the tim and learn sompin besid how to thro a ball".

If "Zeke" is thinking about the issue of girls playing bare-legged on a school lawn, maybe he is thinking about many of the troubles we are involved in and the causes of them; maybe he is thinking about our modern lax morals, which may be a greater factor in the downfall of civilization than atomic bombs.

Well, Zeke, if you are thinking about the moral angle of the girls' practice, you will just have to consider it a trend of the times. When women can smoke, drink and carouse, spend long hours in beer parlors, "dives" and night clubs, and wear a two-piece bathing suit with lots of air space all around it, the kind that replaced the scanty one-piece, which was frowned upon a few years ago, a display of "big bar legs" on a playground should be insignificant, or should it? Anyway, why should you worry?; the mothers and the fathers and preachers are the ones who are condoning this unrestricted display of female shapelines. The girls would be much more modest if encouraged by their mothers to do so, but modesty is practical only for those less attractive girls whose bulges receive more public attention than their curves. Zeke, our modern attitude might have a bearing on our national percentage of sex crimes; what do you think?

If you are interested in the girls' practice from the standpoint of the traffic hazard, you must realize that if you are a young man you are facing a much greater hazard than that of an automobile wreck. In fact the hazard has much to do with the "big bar legs", which can attract the initial attention. If you are an older man, you will probably just have to be resigned to facing traffic hazards, because your characteristics probably won't change much, even if our moral standards do.

If you are interested from the standpoint of attention to scholastic attainments, you should realize that a girl must know much besides what she learns in books. In fact, with a home as the goal of nine-tenths of them, they must learn much about the rules, calculations and prospects of matrimony even as they pore over their books of geometry, history and English.

gift to Pickett, who remarked that "It has always been a pleasure to work with the fire department".

Farmer then introduced W. K. Wahlert, chairman of a committee of members who humorously examined for the three state officials for honorary membership, which was granted "because they do not know any more than the other firemen". Prior to the presentation, Jack Hayes said "Volunteer departments are good by reason of the fact that the men are engaged in the work because their hearts are in it. One of the best fire chiefs in Oregon resides in Nyssa. We admire and respect his ability".

After quoting Pickett as saying the members of the Nyssa department were fine men, Hayes described the situation that prompted the formation of the training program in the state under the sponsorship of the Oregon Fire Chiefs association, with the assistance of other agencies. The state department of vocational education, which employs Halstead, is one of the participating agencies.

The sponsoring groups have held 11 local instructors schools and have graduated well over 100 local instructors.

"We have four full-time instructors, one hired by the vocational education department and three by the state fire marshal. The state is spending $30,000 a year for the training program. The acquisition of one more strong fire fighting department is important to the state".

Discussing the technical phases of fire fighting during war-time, Mr. Hayes told the firemen "You may find yourselves fighting fire in other areas as a part of national defense. This integrated fire training is the finest thing that could happen. During, in case of attack, you are going to be called to places where you are needed. We are proud of the training program and the Nyssa fire department. The Nyssa average of $1.8 indicates the men are pretty sharp".

The state official paid tribute to Pickett and Morris, adding that "We could walk out of the Nyssa fire department and know the training program would be continued. We are here trying to pay our respects to you who have put in a great deal of work and sacrifice over a period of two years. The state department of education has prepared the certificates, which will be presented by 'The Teach' " (Elmer Halstead).

Saying the completion of the training program was accomplished on a voluntary basis, Halstead said, "This is a perfect example of democracy in action. We need have no fear of dictatorship in this country when things are done as they have been done here. The instruction will be continued to maintain the men's skills. We are going into more difficult training".

cluding Adrian) and the Nyssa first and second wards with a combined membership of 1668 members.

On September 14, 1947, the Nyssa ward was divided, forming Nyssa first ward and the new Nyssa second ward, with Arvel L. Child as bishop, Otto R. Anderson and Rosel H. Hunter as counsellors and Glen W. Peterson as clerk.

On March 20, 1949, D. Hubert Christensen was set apart by Elder Marson G. Romney as bishop of Nyssa second ward, with Rosel H. Hunter and Glen W. Peterson as counsellors and Elwood Flinders as ward clerk. On July 10, 1949, Rosel H. Hunter was released and Glen W. Peterson was sustained as first counsellor and Thurn J. Baker as second counsellor.

The Weiser stake was divided January 8, 1950 and the Nyssa stake was organized, with Arvel L. Child as president, W. Fred Blacker, first counsellor, and S. Milton Nelson, second counsellor. The newly-created stake includes Nyssa second ward with 498 members, Nyssa first with 494, Ontario with 684, Owyhee with 423, Vale with 709 and Parma with 253, making a total of six wards with a total membership of 3061.

The building was erected at a cost of $180,000. The architect is Theodore R. Pope and the builder Luther L. Fife. The chapel seating capacity is 326. There are 13 classrooms, the bishop's office, the stake presidency's office and a 50 by 80 recreation hall with a 19 by 50 stage and also a completely equipped modern kitchen. The chapel interior trim and pews are made of natural birch. The drapes are of rose colored velvet with pale green curtains.

Flegel Delivers Two Talks Here

ate, which will attract industries to this area. Such industries would help provide jobs and would also help the farmers".

At the political meeting Mr. Flegel said "The democratic party is a liberal party; it is a party of the common people. We believe in the Truman fair deal program, if you want to call it that. And we believe in a C. V. A. and let there be no mistake about it. I know it is not popular up here in some quarters, but I still believe in it and I am not wedded to any particular phase or paragraph.

"I believe in the policy of the administration with respect to the repeal of the Taft-Hartley act. I believe it should be expanded to include the repeal of those anti-labor laws that were enacted at the 1947 session of the Oregon legislature. Basically the Taft-Hartley act was enacted to hurt labor, to punish labor. Those anti-labor laws of the 1947 session here in Oregon were not intended to help industry, or to do a job for the people of the state.

"We believe in social security. We believe it should be expanded. We believe it should include the farmer as well as the steel worker. We believe the present law that was passed by the last legislature should be repealed, because it contains a provision, the so-called lien law, which is so obnoxious to them.

"We have to keep our school standards high, because education is the very foundation of good government. I believe in the children's bill. I believe in a soldiers bonus. Historically, we have always had a soldiers bonus. In recent wars, we have paid it in money and if they want a bonus, I am for it, and actually from the cold dollars-and-cents standpoint, it would be cheaper to give it to them now than it would be later.

"I think a reformation should be brought about in our state penitentiary, where conditions are just 50 years behind time. It shouldn't be a rest home; it is a place for punishment, but it is also a place for reformation. I believe in doing something in providing parks along the highways to encourage tourists and provide a place where they can have their lunch out of the roadside dust".
