"Why shouldn't
you haul the other fellow's oil?"

One of the things people ask about Standard is why we do not let other oil companies use all of our tankers, marine terminals, and pipelines. They say, "Why shouldn't you haul the other fellow's oil?"

The answer to that question is that we're mighty busy hauling our own, meeting our regular obligations to our customers. Standard just can't share all of its transportation equipment with other companies. And it's unfair to ask us to do it. It's like asking you to let everybody else use your car.

You go out and buy a car for yourself and your family—a car big enough for your needs. So with Standard. We provide whatever facilities it takes to handle our crude oil and keep delivering our finished products where and when they're needed, to customers who depend on us for service.

Now suppose you're driving your car and a hitchhiker thumbs a ride. You pick him up only if you want to. The choice is yours. So again with Standard. In our pipelines within a state, crossing only privately-owned land, and in our tankers, we may choose to carry only our own oil.

But the way some people seem to want it, our freedom of choice would be gone. It's as if you were to be forced to stop and pick up everybody who lifted a thumb at you. We'd be required to carry anybody's oil in these tankers and pipelines, even if our own had to be set aside.

In time, if your car were taken over like that, you'd have to buy another for your own use. Once again, so with Standard. If we were forced to carry competitors' oil, we'd have to buy or build additional facilities to handle our own. Result: increased costs to us, higher prices to you.

When they're needed for national defense, Standard makes its private facilities available for public use. But we can't do it as a general rule. We would lose our efficiency—close to you, our customers, as well as ourselves. We don't believe you want it that way.

IN 1943 Idaho Power became a completely independent company, wholly owned by the public. Since then the list of stockholders has grown by leaps and bounds. Today it totals approximately 10,500.

These stockholders' invested savings have helped finance the phenomenal expansion of your electric service since the end of World War II—nearly $100,000,000 of new, taxpaying capital invested since 1945.

This is public ownership in its truest sense—ninety-four per cent of the stockholders are individuals, the balance are institutional owners such as colleges, insurance companies, civic, fraternal and charitable organizations. No single stockholder owns as much as 2% of the company's stock.

The company is western in ownership and management as well as location. Seventy-five per cent of the stockholders live west of Chicago (six times as many live in Idaho as in New York). All directors of the company are local men from the communities of southern Idaho and eastern Oregon.
