The music department of the Plymouth high school, supplemented by the junior high music groups, will give a benefit concert on Nov. 20 at 8 p. m. at the high school auditorium. The proceeds of this concert will go toward the purchase of six more new band uniforms.—Payette Valley Sentinel.

A travel-worn group of Future Farmers of America returned to Payette Monday after a trip to Kansas City, Mo., where they participated in the National FFA meat identification contest. The group was accompanied by their instructor Lee Olson and Mrs. Olson.

The team was entered in stiff competition against groups representing 33 states. Each team was composed of three members: Rating of teams was made on a basis of five groupings: gold, silver, bronze, honorable mention and participation. Six state teams, Arkansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Texas and Utah won gold honors.—Independent-Enterprise.

When bureau of land management men returned last week after a one-day ride in the Hells Canyon area on the Oregon side, they praised the spectacular country and indicated an interest in getting out an estimated four million feet of mature timber.

Located in the Herman Creek vicinity, the government timber is isolated by lack of access roads. In the party were Roscoe E. Bell, regional administrator; Travis M. Tyrrell, regional chief of forestry; W. Jim Anderson, range-management man; Kenneth A. Burkholder, district forester, Bend; and S. R. Bennett, range manager, Baker.—Record-Courier.

A number of property owners in the Villa Park district have asked a change from commercial to a residential zone for the property on the north side of SW 4th avenue between 11th and 12th streets.

The property was zoned as commercial in 1947 at the time Villa Park was plotted by Theo Moore who owned the property.

Herman Freitag handed a petition to the city council Monday evening asking that the council recommend the zone change to the city planning board.

The petition carried 61 names of persons whose property adjoined or was near the commercial zone.—Argus-Observer.

A meeting of the advisory board of the Vale-Jordan grazing district here brought three bureau heads to Vale this week. They were G. M. Kerr, Washington, D. C., chief of range management, C. P. Seely, Portland, regional director, and Jim Anderson, Portland, assistant regional chief.

According to A. K. Hansen, district director, the bureau bigwigs met with the board to discuss Tuesday in an attempt to explain procedure in the handling of grazing applications and to discuss the program of range management.—Malheur Enterprise.

W. D. Hickman, chairman of Canyon County Farm bureau, announced the date of farm bureau's annual meeting to be held in the Dairy-men's hall, Thursday, Oct. 30, at 8 p. m. The annual report of the organization will be given at this meeting as well as the election of voting delegates and candidate for state director to attend the state convention of the Idaho Farm bureau to be held in November in Pocatello. Resolutions governing the activities of the county and state organizations will be acted upon at this meeting.—Parma Review.

Hereford Assoc. Holds Banquet

Served in buffet style, the Eastern Oregon Hereford association held its annual banquet Tuesday night at Veterans Memorial hall, Ontario.

Bert Aiken, president of the association, presided over the formal program that included business, a speaker and musical entertainment. Ellis White served as toastmaster.

The entertainment consisted of band selections by the Nyssa Municipal band, directed by Leon Burt.

George Russell, president, Malheur Livestock association, was the speaker. Theme of his discourse was to the effect that breeders of pure bred cattle have contributed considerably to the improvement of the livestock industry in general. He added further that Malheur county has more cattle than any other county in the state.

A sale of high grade Hereford stock was held on Wednesday, details of which were not available to the Journal.

Art Featured In Book Selection

A selection of books on art predominates in this week's group of new books at the Malheur County Library. In addition, a song book and one about trains, are also to be ready for circulation by Saturday, November 1.

"Art Has Many Faces" by Katherine Kuh is an interpretation with many illustrations of paintings, and sculpture of all periods including the

A.A.U.W. Hear About Crime At Meeting

The American Association of University Women held its October meeting at the home of Mrs. Inez Driscoll in Payette Friday. The speaker for the evening was Sgt. Wayne Huffman of the state police who spoke on "Crime," locally. He told of experiences he has had with the state police and the FBI in helping to solve two much publicized crimes committed in this state during the last two years.

A boys' quartet from the Payette high school sang two numbers accompanied by their instructor, Mrs. Driscoll. The A.A.U.W. welcomes new members. Any woman who has a four year college degree and whose college is approved by the national office of the A.A.U.W. is eligible for membership. Members in Nyssa who may be contacted for this information are Mrs. Kay Brendle, Mrs. Mel Ingebritsen, Mrs. John Briehl or Mrs. Sid Flanagan.

Another well illustrated volume is Virginia Stewart's "45 Contemporary Mexican Artists."

"Abstract Painting" by Thomas Hess traces the work being done today in the United States and its Paris background, besides analyzing the work of 18 artists.

Several American painters of the West are represented in the colorful "Gallery of Western Paintings" edited by Raymond Carlson.

A look at another type of art which is often practiced by amateurs is Doris Cox's "Creative Hands," an introduction to craft techniques.

Another practical volume is Robert Buckley's "A Basic Guide to Lettering" which gives tips on letter proportions and spacing as well as various alphabet styles.

Art of the humorous variety is represented by the cartoons in "The New Yorker 25th Anniversary Album."

"The Rodgers and Hart Song Book" contains the words and music of 47 songs.

A book of interest to railroad hobbyists and model makers in particular, and useful for the information it contains on various kinds of locomotives, is the "Popular Picture and Plan Book of Railroad Cars and Locomotives."
