

New Officers of Job's Daughters Installed at Special Ceremonies

A special meeting of Job's Daughters Bethel 33 was held Wednesday evening to install officers for the coming term. Doris Rigney, retiring honored queen, was presiding installation officer and was assisted by Betty Boenig, senior custodian; Bonnie Ward, junior custodian; Louise Wernick, recorder; Marion Chelideln, chaplain; Patricia House, guide, and Patricia Simpson, marshal.

New officers of the Bethel are Phyllis Chelideln, honored queen; Keitha Strassbaugh, senior princess; Lois Wilson, junior princess; Annette Stradley, musician; Ann House, chaplain; Mary Joan Rus-

Other new officers are Donna Butler, outer guard; Sally Lawrence, inner guard; Nancy Jo House and Judy Savage, keepers of lights; Catherine Coleman, senior page, and Dolores Duus, junior page.

A program honoring the girls' mystery dads and DeMolay boys' mystery mothers followed installation. The girls carried candles to a madonna and manger scene singing "Ave Maria." The dads then searched out their mystery daughters; the first ten winning candy canes. The boys pinned flowers on their mystery mothers.

Guardians Paul and Betty House were recipients of a hanky parade by the girls while fellow council members presented them with a table lamp.

Pie and coffee were served by Bonnie Ward and her assistants. The Bethel plans to attend installation at Ontario next Wednesday evening.
