Laymen's Sunday Is Observed By Methodist Church

Laymen's Sunday was observed in the Community Methodist church last Sunday, with members of the church participating in the services. Dick Yost presided in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. Vernon L. Taylor, who, with his family, is vacationing in Nebraska.

In place of the regular sermon, two conference reports were given. Mrs. Gene Grasty, vice president of the Women's Society for Christian Service, told about the school of missions she attended between July 6 and 10 at Caldwell.

John Wolf, as a delegate from the local church, reported on the Methodist annual conference, held the first of June at Caldwell.

Special music was in the form of a duet, "Teach Me to Pray," sung by Hugh Tabler, tenor, and Dwight Wyckoff, baritone. Mrs. Carlos Buchner was the accompanist.

Dr. Charles Donaldson of Boise, retired Methodist minister and former district superintendent, will be guest preacher for the next two Sundays, Aug. 9 and 16.

New Books At County Library

Several novels, some tales of the old West, and a book concerning Christian faith will go into circulation at the Malheur County Library on Saturday, Aug. 8.

One of the novels is "Good Morning, Young Lady" by Ardyth Kennelly. Though the setting is Salt Lake City, this is not a Mormon story like the author's "The Peaceable Kingdom." It is a kind of Cinderella fantasy about a young girl whose dream world here is the famous outlaw, Butch Cassidy.

An adventure novel of a desert mission is "The Lost Trail of the Sahara" by Roger Frison-Roche, author of the Sahara by Roger Frison-Roche, author of the mountaineering story "The Grand Crevasse. A young and inexperienced lieutenant battles heat, thirst, sand, and hostile tribesmen to complete his mission.

"Stephanie" by Iona Karmel depicts the changes wrought in the lives of three patients in a Swedish hospital by their contact with one another and also by the hospital. Stephanie is a Polish refugee bitterly determined to be cured. Thura, a young girl, and the spinster Froken Nilsson are the other patients who share with her Room Number Two. "Divine Average" is a novel of pioneer Texas by Elithe Kirkland. Range Templeton lived obsessed by land hunger; Luvisa, his wife, lived for her husband and their twins. Her mixed heritage and his prejudice became a source of conflict, and this is the story of what resulted.

"Thunder in the Southwest; Echoes from the Wild Frontier" is Owen Arnold's contribution of the six-shooter-ales of mining towns, cattle rustling, bandits, and Indians. Though not conventional history, since all events cannot be verified with exactitude, these tales are more history than fiction.

Harry Emerson Fosdick's "A Faith for Tough Times" comprises three lectures delivered in 1952: "The eternal is real," "Vitality is mightier than size," and "adequate power is available."

Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Barry of Revelstoke, B. C. arrived Sunday to visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Graham.

Mr. Davis preceded her in death March 8, 1948.

Henigson Gives Blood Drawing Figures in Talk Monday to Lions Club

Lions club members learned from Hal Henigson, Nyssa blood bank chairman, that 1290 pints of blood had been donated by Nyssans since the first blood drawing here July 27, 1949, and that since the opening of Malheur Memorial hospital in October, 1950, 887 pints of whole blood had been taken.

It was further revealed by Henigson that since Jan. 1, 1950, 977 pints had been contributed by Nyssans, with 823 pints of it coming back to the local hospital.

And this practice has been true every year, he indicated, with practically every pint being donated by local persons "coming right back here for use in our own hospital".

He added that the need has not diminished, but that it would be accelerated if a national emergency should arise.

It was also pointed out by the speaker that if 5 percent of the nation's population gave a pint of blood a year that there would be more than sufficient to take care of the needs of the armed services.

Henigson revealed that one Lions club member, Everett Heldt, is one of the top members in the Nyssa Gallon club, comprised of individuals who have given a gallon of blood to the blood bank.

Heldt has given nine pints, as has also Mrs. Ralph Lawrence. Other gallon-givers are Thomas V. Moore, Bob Thompson, Mrs. Grant Rinehart, Bernard Frost, Ralph Lawrence and Dorothy Nolan.

Henigson pointed up the enviable record the Nyssa area has made in the blood drives, having topped all neighboring communities and setting the unapproachable mark for any town of comparable size of 301 pints last Jan. 7.

Lions members were told that in drives just completed, Ontario had given 157 pints and Vale 149 pints. Realizing, Henigson said, that 301 pints was a high goal to shoot at, he is certain that the blood drive set for Nyssa Wednesday, Aug. 12, will see local donations approach that figure.

Henigson also emphasized the need for continued blood giving even though a Korean armistice has been effected.

"Shipments of whole blood and blood plasma will be continued to Korea on the same large scale for some time," Henigson stated.

Destined to become Gallon club members Aug. 12 are Charles W. Farmer, Sam C. Parks, Harold P. Penrod, Sam C. Phillips and Frank Sherwood, who are now 7-pinters.

It was urged by Henigson that all persons who wish to give blood but who have not yet signed an appointment sheet being circulated among business firms and organization to do so this week.
