Kraut, Franks and Applesauce
Go Together In Spicy Winter Platter

Pink applesauce spiked with cinnamon candies and horseradish forms the centerpiece of a winter-weather meal of piping hot sauerkraut and ruddy brown frankfurters. What a combination!

Nice thing about it is that all three main ingredients can be stored ready to heat on your can shelf. Then, when wintry winds and mile high snowdrifts make marketing a problem, all you need do is open your cans of applesauce, franks and sauerkraut, add the right spices, heat thoroughly and serve. Easy as A, B, C.

Perhaps your family goes for a plainer platter—just kraut and franks. In that case, serve the pink applesauce on the side and watch their delight at its out-of-the-ordinary spiciness.

Winter Special

1 1-pound can applesauce
2 tablespoons red cinnamon candies
2 tablespoons prepared horseradish
1 No. 2½ can sauerkraut
1 teaspoon caraway seeds, optional
1 can frankfurters
1 tablespoon butter or margarine

Combine applesauce, cinnamon candies and horseradish in saucepan. Stir well and let stand ½ hour, stirring occasionally. Heat sauerkraut, season with caraway seeds. Drain frankfurters and cook in butter, turning to brown on all sides. Place sauerkraut on chop plate; make well in center. Put hot applesauce in well. Lay frankfurters around ring of kraut. YIELD: 4 servings.

*Frankfurters are packed 6—12 to the can, depending upon can size and brand.
