Positive and Negative Appeals

Richard L. Neuberger, Democratic candidate for U. S. senator, gave two speeches in Malheur county last week—both of them bids for an end to what he calls the one-party system in Oregon. The talks were ingeniously planned to appeal to two entirely different audiences.

At Nyssa Wednesday noon, Mr. Neuberger took a positive approach to appeal to what he admittedly but incorrectly assumed was an almost entirely Republican audience. He did not attack his opponent, Guy Cordon, directly and he tactfully avoided any mention of selfish interests or reactionaries when commenting on groups having different political philosophies than his own. The candidate asked for a change from a Republican dominated administration to a Democratic regime, along with its Washington representation.

At Ontario Wednesday evening before a predominately Democratic audience, Multnomah county's state senator used an entirely different approach by lashing out at his Republican opponent and accusing "big money" for things that are wrong in Oregon.

Many Republicans can agree that Oregon does have something of a one-party system and they might ask the reason since elections are held biennially as they are in most other states.

First of all, Mr. Neuberger does not represent nor advocate the Democratic principles of Thomas Jefferson whom he frequently quotes. His proposals indicate a desire to weaken the local form of government and strengthen centralized government. About one year ago Mr. Neuberger, who is an accomplished author, wrote a detailed article advocating consolidation of Oregon's 36 counties into eight districts or counties, which would strip rural areas, like those of Eastern Oregon, of their remaining privileges of self-government.

In extolling the advantages of the state of Washington, Mr. Neuberger failed to analyze that state's tremendous debt and he gave no summary of the amount of taxes each individual pays in the form of sales taxes that have failed to reduce property assessments. By the same token, he did not compare Seattle's almost extinct small business with that of Portland where there still is some rugged individualism free of the control of monopolies the candidate abhors.

We enjoyed the candidate's speech at Nyssa and felt that it was refreshing to hear so controversial a figure present his cause with apparent malice toward none. His negative approach in the evening left an entirely different reaction and made us wish Thomas Jefferson could come forth with some more first-hand advice like, "It is not by consolidation or concentration of powers but by their distribution that good government is effected."

Co-operation and Appreciation

Blue Mountain Eagle—
Via the Forest Grove paper we picked up this column. It appears to be a little caustic on the average dullard citizen. While there is meat for thought in some of the statements it is possible that a community as a whole might be presenting an attitude that does not show proper appreciation for the work done by public-spirited citizens.

As you read the reprint column, keep in mind that cooperation is a two-way street.

- While thumbing through newspapers of other areas we found the following presented by the South Sioux City Star of South Sioux City, Nebraska:
- List 13 Sure Ways to Ruin Home Town
1. Don't pay taxes. Let the other fellow pay his. Vote against taxes. Then fuss because the streets are not kept up.
 2. Never attend any of the meetings called for the good of the town. If you do, don't have anything to say. Wait until you get outside and then cuss those who made the suggestions. Find fault with everything that was done.
 3. Get all the city will give you, and don't give anything in return. Write unsigned letters to the editor demanding more for your tax money.
 4. Talk cooperation, but don't do any work for your city unless you get paid for it. And by all means refuse to serve unless they make you chairman.
 5. Never accept an office. It's easier to criticize than to do things. Accuse anybody who serves in an elected office of being a publicity seeker.
 6. Don't do any more than you have to do. When others willingly and unselfishly give their time to make a better town, howl because the town is run by a clique.
 7. Don't back your fire department or your police department. If the firemen work to bring the insurance rates down, tell everybody that is what they are supposed to do. Don't thank them or the policemen for endangering their lives that you might have a safer town in which to live. Demand special treatment; raise Cain if anybody expects you to obey traffic and parking laws.
 8. Look at every proposition in a selfish way. If you are not the one who gets the most good out of it, vote against it. Never consider what it will do for the town as a whole.
 9. Don't do anything for the youth of the town. Criticize them as potential delinquents. Keep your feet on them. Encourage them to move away when they grow up.
 10. If you have good town leaders, don't follow them.

MILK COSTS YOU LESS: Above, Miss Reggie Dombeck steps on a "ladder of milk" to present the history of more milk for your money. In 1953, the average industrial worker's pay for an hour bought 7 1/2 qts. of home-delivered milk. In 1929, an hour's pay purchased only 5.2 qts. In 1929—only 3.9 qts. This year, milk is even cheaper. Daniel M. Dent, national chairman for June Dairy Month, says: "Milk and milk products are tops for taste, health, and economy."

Along The EDITOR'S BEET

If anyone ever tries to tell you the milk of human kindness is curdling, go ahead and tell him he's cynical besides not knowing what he's talking about.

A Nyssa woman reported that an abundance of help was offered one day last week when a flat tire stalled her car out north of town. Even though she had three youngsters with her, she attempted to replace the flat with the inflated spare, and was capable of doing so, but she didn't even have a chance to get the jack out of the trunk.

A Mexican youth walking nearby immediately offered his assistance and took over the job he undoubtedly knew all about. While the lad, was making the change, another youth on a bicycle and four motorists stopped to offer their help.

We know the story's true—the victim was the ed's wife.

One out of 15 people in the United States depend on the dairy industry for their living.

- Take a jealous attitude and talk down everything they do.
11. Don't work on any committee. Tell them, "I'm too busy."
 12. Don't say anything good about your town. Be the first to point up its shortcomings. Pretend that if trouble comes your way it will be the residents of some other town who will visit you while you are ill; bring in the fire department if your home is burning; comfort you if you lose a dear one; stand back of you in disaster.
 13. And Don't support your local stores and industries. Claim the prices and services in stores in other towns are better. Claim industry and its payroll hurts the town. But if you need a donation, ask your local stores and industries for it. Expect them to back you, but don't back them.

Cull Cows Now for PROFIT

Of course it's hard to cull cows when their value is way below what is used to be. But the simple facts are that a lot of cows that made good money last year are costing you money today.

In fact, one low producer may lose enough money to offset the profit two good cows should make.

The quickest and surest way to put your herd on a good paying basis again is to take out those low producers.

We have a new, simple plan to help you decide which cows are money-makers, which money-losers. You don't have to weigh milk or belong to a testing association.

We'll be glad to come out to your farm and help you put it to work. Doesn't take a lot of your time. No cost or obligation.

Give us a call, real soon. We think we can help your profits.

Instead, the boys and their leaders and Rev. and Mrs. Moore ate their lunch in the church parlors, after which some of the boys went swimming at Given's Hot Springs. Fifty eight boys were present at the lunch.

Congratulations to Paul and Gertrude Cleaver for having highest herd average in Malheur county in DHIA test with less than 20 cows.

For the year, the average number of cows was 13.6 cows. The average cows age was 2 years and 8 months. The herd included nine first calf heifers. Cleaver's herd averaged 480.4 pounds of butterfat per cow equaled 8374 pounds of milk. Their profit figure over feed cost last year was $4070.

The beautiful Jersey cow pictured above with her owner, Paul Cleaver, was Junior champion at the Malheur Jersey Show in 1953, and first in her class of two-year-olds in 1954. She is a daughter of Imported Itaska's Senator.

Paul and Gertrude's herd average a year ago was 420 pounds of butterfat. By culling the herd and improving their feeding program they have increased the herd average to 480 pounds this year.

The Cleavers believe that following the PURINA program for raising their heifers and feeding BULKY LAS and COW CHOW when they are milking has been largely responsible for this nice increase.
