We'll Be Seeing You

Nyssa's Fall Festival Saturday is significant in many respects and we believe we can speak for the town when we say it is a pleasure to welcome the entire community to be Nyssa's guests.

This fall event has special meaning in that it is somewhat of an early Thanksgiving for the bountiful crops produced and for the good prices that are being received. Nyssa is saying thank you to those people who produce the crops—the people who are better than average and have made this one of the most outstanding agricultural sections in the United States. The town and its business men are well aware that the farms are responsible for their existence and they are saying thanks for doing business with us for the past year.

Saturday is a day we can get together, become better acquainted and pause from our work, whether it's plowing the field, selling merchandise or performing some professional service. The excellent understanding among all people of this community can be made even better while we're eating barbecued beef and comparing notes on our blessings and problems.

All of us will see all of you Saturday.
