Shop In Nyssa Free

Payette, over in Idaho, has joined other cities of the lower Snake river valley and installed meters, the gadgets that fast-talking salesmen claim will solve all parking problems at a nickel a piece.

Nyssa is now the only city of 2000 or more population in this area where farmers and neighboring town residents can come to shop without being charged for it. Added to the fact that almost all retail prices are lower than those in most other towns, the selection of merchandise is unsurpassed and the friendly service is definitely outdone in none of the other towns. Nyssa merchants should appreciate Payette's yielding to the mechanical fee-collectors.

In some cities Chambers of Commerce have assumed the obligation of stuffing nickels into meters where cars have over-parked, thus defeating the original purpose of solving a parking problem and increasing the overhead expense of the town's merchants.

Nyssa welcomes all visitors at all times and there's no charge for the privilege of buying or for just looking.
