

OSC Specialists Report Bigger 1955 Potato Plantings

Prospects for larger potato plantings in Idaho, Washington and California are casting a shadow over the market outlook for the 1955 crop according to Oregon State college extension specialists.

Prices to growers are likely to be disappointing, they believe, unless bad weather or an unusual shift in planting plans change the picture.

A recent U. S. department of agriculture survey reveals growers in Idaho and Washington plan seven percent more acreage than last year. California has already planted 23 percent more early potatoes. These increases are planned even though last year's production provided adequate supplies at fair prices.

M. D. Thomas, OSC extension economist, says the prospective acreages would mean a 35 percent increase in California's early potato crop yields are as good as in 1951. Idaho's crop could be more than one-fifth larger than last year if yields equal those of 1952.

Oregon growers' plans in March were shaping up to the same acreage as last year, but Thomas says some may now stay out of the fight for the potato market this year and use their land, water and fertilizer for some other crop.

The economist suggests this is a good time to leave alfalfa, clover and grass an extra year rather than planting potatoes. "A low return from grain or hay would be better than a loss on potatoes," he concludes.

Roland Groder, OSC marketing specialist, adds that growers and shippers, at best, must push to improve quality, cut costs and meet consumer preferences if Oregon is to gain ground in the markets against the strong competition.

New Program for Wool Payments After April 1

Wool of the 1955 clip sold by the grower April 1 and after will qualify for wool payments under the new program in operation for the first time this year. Wool sold before April 1 will not qualify for such payments according to the Malheur County Agricultural stabilization and conservation committee whose office is responsible for administering the wool program.

The program, the committee explains, results from the National Wool Act of 1954 to stimulate wool production in the United States. As authorized by this law the Secretary of Agriculture has announced an incentive price of 62 cents per lb. for shorn wool, grease basis for the 1955 marketing year. Payments will be made to wool growers when the national average market price for wool falls below the incentive level.

The committee also reminds wool growers to save all sales slips and other evidences indicating producer, buyer, date of sale, and delivery and amount of sale to support claim for payment.

Sales records also are used to arrive at national average sales price upon which wool incentive payments are based. The rate of payment to each grower is a uniform percentage needed to bring the average price all growers receive for their wool up to the incentive price level. This means that the more the individual grower gets for his wool the greater will be his total return.

Wool on lambs and yearlings sold for slaughter also has an additional value under the wool program on and after April 1 this year. When lambs or yearlings are sold for slaughter the grower should see that the bill of sale contains a certification that the lambs or yearlings were purchased for slaughter and that they had full wool pelts.

A full wool pelt, for purposes of the program, is one that never has been shorn, or, if it has been shorn, has a growth of one and one-half inches of wool. To be eligible for payment the seller must have owned the lambs or yearlings for at least 30 days. In any case, the seller of the lambs or yearlings to a slaughterer can endorse the certifications back to a prior owner or the original producer of the animals, who would then be eligible to receive the payments.

Payments on live lambs and yearlings will be determined from the difference between the shorn wool incentive price and the national average price received for all shorn wool. Payments will be made on a per-hundred-pounds of live weight and will be at the same rate for all growers. The payments are designed to maintain normal marketing practices and prevent unusual shearing of lambs and yearlings marketed for slaughter.

Since the incentive payment determination cannot be made until the 1955 clip has been marketed, payments to growers cannot be expected before the summer of 1956.

CARS ARE MY LINE

by: Boyd Wilson

When you buy a car, even one of the low priced cars on our used car lot, it will probably be your largest investment outside of your home, if you own your own home. If you don't, then you will have more money invested in your car than in anything else.

That's why it pays to know something about cars, more for instance, than the lady who was driving along the highway last summer in one of those European cars with the engine in the back and the luggage compartment where the engine usually is.

She was purring along when suddenly the car stalled and she had to pull over on the shoulder. She got out, raised the hood and shrieked so you could have heard it two concessions away. "My stars, I've lost the engine!"

Fortunately, another woman was on the highway in the same kind of car and when she noticed the stranded lady she pulled up to help a fellow-owner.

"I seem to have lost my engine," explained the stranded one.

"Well, this is lucky," said the Good Samaritan. "I just happened to look in our trunk today and I noticed we have a spare engine in there."

You probably know more about cars than the stranded lady, but if you don't we'll tell you frankly what our cars have and what they haven't in language you won't need a dictionary to translate.

We want you to know exactly what you're buying because you're making your largest, or second largest, investment in comfort, satisfaction and convenience. There is no purchase that can bring more happiness than a good, neat car. But a car that takes you through the wringer by depreciating faster than it should isn't going to improve your temper or our good name. That's why we want you to look under the hood, into the trunk, everywhere you want. Road test the car, too.

While you are on the lot here are a few sound, tight, and clean Automobiles we'll back anywhere for price and quality.

1952 Buick—reconditioned, beautiful black finish, premium tires.

1951 Chevrolet—new paint, very sharp inside, a lot of unused miles.

Due to the fact that we have changed models in GMC Pickups we still have a 1955 first series in stock which we will sell at a real bargain.
