Meal Headliners, Corn And Beans

Among the good buys found on the grocer's shelves are canned vegetables. Heading this list right now are green and wax beans and corn, not only good buys price-wise but good buys meal-wise.

For instance, both make handsome vegetable dishes when they are heated, buttered and seasoned to taste. Both take well to many sauces—condensed cream of mushroom soup being an excellent quick sauce to use. If the menu needs a cold addition, try corn relish or green bean salad. Here are two specials to try.

Home Style Green Beans

4 slices Canadian bacon 1 can (16 oz.) green or wax beans
(or ham) Salt and pepper
1 medium size onion
Cook bacon until brown; remove and keep hot. Cook chopped onion in the fat until lightly browned. Add liquid drained from beans and cook down to about half. Add beans, season to taste, and heat. Put in serving dish and arrange the bacon on top. Four servings.

Squash Corn

Cook a few slices of bacon until crisp; remove from pan. In about 2 tablespoons of the fat, cook some chopped green pepper and onion until tender. Add a can of corn (whole kernel or cream style) and some sliced pimiento. Heat through and add the crumbled bacon.

underwent surgery in the Caldwell hospital Thursday, is rapidly improving.
