YOU MAY LOSE PIGS
YOU NEVER SEE

Mother nature takes care of the brood sow, but she doesn't do so well by her tiny unborn pigs. The early period of gestation is the most dangerous. Authorities estimate that 20-33% of all embryos are lost at this time. Reason — if not fed a ration rich in needed ingredients during gestation, the sow will resorb tiny embryos into her system.

When you consider that a well fed sow develops 9 to 12 embryos to 2½ and 3 lbs. in about 106 days, is it any wonder she needs balanced nutrition? She's a pig factory. She'll make money for her owner, if fed properly.

Yes, that's why we recommend Purina Sow and Pig Chow and grain from breeding until 5 days before farrowing. This program has what it takes to help you get large litters of husky 3-pound pigs.

IT'S NEVER TOO LATE FOR PURINA BULKY LAS

Even though it's halfway through the pasture season, it's never too late to start feeding Purina Bulky Las to your milkers. Pasture is a great help to many dairymen because it produces the cheapest milk, but it is a serious handicap to many others because they let the cows lose condition. This makes cows give less milk than they should in late summer and fall. It takes time to rebuild condition. Bulky Las is a body builder and a milk maker.

It is a bulky, low-cost feed that is very palatable and nutritious. Bulky Las produces more milk and builds good body condition. Cows will have less udder trouble and clean easily and quickly. Just add ½ gallon of Bulky Las per head on the usual grain ration night and morning. It is economical too . . . 5 bushels in every 100 lbs. Try the 30 day Bulky Las test and see.

Flies cost dairymen three and one-third pounds of milk from each cow for each day they are permitted to torment the herd, according to tests in Iowa.

BIG JOB FOR VENTILATION SYSTEM

Researchers at the University of Idaho point out that every 100 hens give off 5 to 5½ gallons of water a day. A flock of 400 hens yields 10 tons of water in just four months. This shows why good ventilation is one of the basic requirements for good poultry management. The Idaho poultrymen say one-third of the water comes from the hen's breath and two-thirds is in the droppings.

Feed for all 3

*Body Growth
*Body Maintenance
*Lots of Eggs

The pullet is under a great strain during the first 4½ - 5 months of laying. She has to complete her growth, keep up her body while laying at a 65 to 85% rate.

Powerful Purina Booster Checkers top-fed over regular feed are designed to help pullets do all these jobs. Helps hens hold high production for a long time — through fall and winter when egg prices are good. Let us tell you other ways Purina Booster Checkers can help you.

CHOOSE CATTLE FEED WISELY

Every year more and more farmers around here feed Purina Steer Fatena with their grain. There must be a reason. We think there is three:

First, farmers say it keeps the cattle up to the bunks eating and putting on fast gains.

Second, many feeders tell us that they've never seen a supplement like Purina for putting on a smooth, even finish that means a high grade when the cattle go to market.

Last, the balance of proteins, minerals and other feeds is just right to go with barley and put on gains at low cost per pound.

Drop in or call us and we'll be glad to tell you about the results of farmers around here who feed Steer Fatena.
