CARS ARE MY LINE

by: Boyd Wilson

A few years ago the coy comedians began making jokes about the fact that some women's charms weren't all theirs. The word "cheaters" used to mean a pair of glasses. It came to mean something entirely different. We could no longer believe in the old adage that "Figures don't lie."

There's something called "padding" in the car business, too, although it's not nearly so pretty a picture. Some car dealers still use it, and it just goes to prove the other half that old adage: "Liars sure can figger."

A customer comes in and asks: "How much will you give me for this old car of mine on a new one? Let's say that the new car he wants costs $2500 and his old one is worth $1500.

The "figgering" salesman says: "Why, we'll give you $2000 for that charming heap of tin of yours on this sparkling new $3000 job." The sad part is that "padding" is pretty successful unless the customer forgets his pride and does some figuring too.

In the above example, you'll notice, it still cost the customer $1000, no matter what the salesman said. And the customer could then boast to his friends how good a salesman HE was, how he passed off his old klunker for 2000 bucks.

The danger with padding is that a salesman schooled in the big city rules of what's called "hard sell" will inflate the customer's ego just enough by adding $200 to the trade-in value (offering $1700 in this case) but still will add the $500 to the new car price.

The customer, lost in a pink cloud of joy at getting $1700, falls for it. His protection, obviously, is to make all his decisions on the basis of how much EXTRA he has to pay over the trade-in price. That's the important figure, and that's the figure you'll get from us without any $300 fables in.

If you are looking for a bargain and a real savings, come in and take a look at our Buick Demonstrator. It has been used very few miles and of course carries a new car guarantee just the same as if you had driven it off the showroom floor. Also I have a dandy 1951 Jeep, that is in top condition, very sharp, and has a factory built metal cab. See this one for your hunting needs.
