It Feels Like Fall

There's something about the coming of fall, "predicted" by cool nights and mornings and by the end of most family vacations, that brings a new spark of life to the community.

In this area there is an early reminder of harvest time by the movement of potatoes that starts in July and is soon followed by the harvest of grain, then sugar beets and all other seasonal crops.

Parents—and the kids—start rejoicing or bemoaning the fact that "It's only two and a half weeks until school starts." Mothers probably are looking forward to Sept. 3 when youngsters can get back to the classroom routine and the kids have mixed emotions—eager to renew old friendships and create new ones, but reluctant to give up swimming, fishing, tree-climbing, sports and some work done under protest.

Business firms can return to the routine for which they are geared after disruptions and changes brought about by summer vacations. Organizations that suspend meetings for the summer or struggle along with small attendance can return to full-time activities.

A newspaper, in particular, is glad to see the humdrum of summer gone in spite of prospects of cold weather, snow and fuel bills. Vacations take away dozens of news sources as well as those who make news for the country weekly.

Fall is indeed a season to be welcomed as one of the four contrasting seasons that add to the satisfaction of living in the lower Snake river valley.

Let the Bible Speak

Dear friends, let us refer to the Scriptures I left for you to read last week—Matt. 7:15-23 and Luke 13:25-27.

Will you be one of that number who will say unto the Lord, "Thou hast taught in our streets," or "Haven't I cast out devils in Thy name and done many works in Thy name," and then hear the Lord say, "Depart from me all ye workers of iniquity."

You may ask: "Who are workers of iniquity?"

Any time people are worshipping differently and not following the teachings of Christ in the New Testament.

You may read these Scriptures. I am sure these people would be considered workers of iniquity (Matt. 15:9; Mark 7:7; Rom. 16:17; Rom. 1:21-22; Eph. 5:6-7; Col. 2:8-9) or any time a person who worships the way he wants to, or the way some prophet or revealer has told him. If it isn't written by the apostles or inspired writers of the New Testament, Paul says, "Let it be accursed." Gal. 1:8-9.
