LDS Hobby Night Reveals Talents Of Many Kinds

The special interest class of the LDS MIA held a "hobby" night social Wednesday evening at the Second ward, where many class members displayed their hobbies, bringing out hidden talents.

Receiving special ribbons of recognition were Bessie Bair for her velvet pillows and home-made rugs; Gladys Marsh, collection of tea towel patterns and numerous sets of tea towels; Leo Child, rare collection of old-time newspaper pictures and clippings, also for his gladoli display; Bernice Sanders for her many articles of various typed crochet doilies, table cloths and chair covers; Mildred Peterson, home-cooked upside down raisin muffins.

Thelma Bybee won an award for her three volumes of family research in genealogy which included pictures, histories, sacred documents and a pedigree chart proving the Bybee lineage back to the Mayflower descendants; Herbert Sanders, original poetry, one of which is being set to music; LaVerne Esplin, crocheted doilies, hairpin lace stoles and other articles she has made.

Elfrida Palmer had clever monkey dolls made from men's hose and also upside down dolls of black and white. Elbert Palmer displayed lamps and other articles made of driftwood.

Judged the most clever of all displays was the best planter invented by Mel Beck, which caused much excitement and comment.

President Alvin Marsh conducted the class. Refreshments of cantaloupe and ice cream were served to 40 members and guests.
