4-H CLUB ACTIVITIES

By County Extension Agents

4-H Leaders Council

The quarterly meeting of the Malheur 4-H leaders council will be held in Ontario next Thursday, May 15, starting at 1:30 p.m. Main item of business will be plans for the 4-H spring show on June 3-6. Mrs. Zeola Nielsen, president of the council, will announce committee appointments, and go over the schedule of events.

Rebecca Johnston, extension agent, will explain the exhibits in the various classes and will also discuss the different contests. Some practice in judging will give the leaders help in preparing contestants for the home economics judging contest at the spring show.

One other item of business will be selection of leader delegates

Nyssa Extension Unit Hosts Nearly 400

NEARLY 400 home extension women throughout Malheur county, representing 17 units, are pictured above as they were served luncheon at the Nyssa LDS stake house by women of the LDS Second ward last Wednesday. The theme "Springtime in the Desert" was carried out in various moods of decorations. The Nyssa unit was awarded two honors during the event.

The festival was concluded, after a full day, with an impressive candlelight installation service conducted by Miss Esther Taskerud and Mrs. A. R. Cammack.

to the annual 4-H summer school at Oregon State College June 16-22. The leaders council usually sends two leaders to help chaperone the 4-H club members attending summer school from Malheur county.

Demonstration Day

4-H Club leaders in the Vale and Ontario districts held demonstration days in their respective areas this last Saturday. The 4-H club members and leaders attending these meetings indicated quite a lot of interest in this method for club meetings as well as a contest. Some demonstrations were given as samples and others were planned during the meetings.

Christine Uchida and Ellen Nakada made cookies during the Ontario demonstration day. Sharon Winegar and Janet Hoffman gave a dairy foods demonstration using cottage cheese as the base for their salad. Linda Balboa and Sheila Hoffman showed the group an unusual way to make tuna sandwiches.

All of these demonstrations will be entered in competition during the 4-H spring show, and any if these mentioned promise to give keen competition.

Judy Moller and Mary Lang from Vale plan to give a demonstration on meat cookery, and their plans sound real interesting.

4-H Summer School

The Malheur delegation to 4-H summer school at Oregon State College June 16-22 will evidently be the largest ever. Several additional sponsors are providing scholarships this year, making a total of 63 scholarships that have been provided. As this is three over our normal quota, the state 4-H club office has granted us an increase in our quota for this year in order to permit taking this additional number.

A list of delegates selected by the scholarship committee of the Malheur 4-H leaders council was sent to the state 4-H office on May 1. These delegates will be assigned to living quarters in the various halls, dormitories, and fraternity and sorority houses used by the college students during the regular school term. A list of these housing assignments will be returned to our office about the middle of the month.
