Northwest Books Head New List At Local Library

Timely new books announced at the Nyssa library include several on the Pacific Northwest and one of Oregon historical interest, Mrs. Desmond Jones, librarian, has announced.

"John McLoughlin: Father of Oregon" was written by Robert C. Johnson. As chief factor of the Hudson Bay company from 1824 to 1845, McLoughlin's word was law and his law was just. He reigned over Indians and white men alike until he fell victim to the cause he had ardently worked for—the transition from the fur trade to settlement. Destiny had him in the path of American progress.

"Wildlife of the Pacific Northwest" by Margaret McKenny. "I feel that to be a nature lover, as I am, is to have an inexhaustible store of riches to share with others and if in this volume I have shared my appreciation of this wealth, I am well rewarded."

"Lost Mines and Treasures of the Pacific Northwest" by Ruby E. Hult.

"The Great West" by Charles Neider. A magnificent panorama of the American west with 250,000 words of contemporary accounts and over 100 illustrations and maps.

Harper Hunsaker, Paul, Idaho.

"N" It takes N, men

"I wouldn't want to try to farm without nitrogen—it wouldn't be worth the effort."

That's the opinion of Harper Hunsaker of Paul, Idaho, one of many successful western farmers who use USS Nitrogen Fertilizers.

"I believe my sugar beet yield was increased five tons per acre by using nitrogen, plus phosphate. Last year, I applied USS Ammonium Nitrate before planting, then side-dressed with USS Anhydrous Ammonia. The yield was tops in the area," Mr. Hunsaker says.

Mr. Hunsaker also used USS Nitrogen Fertilizers on his beans, with a yield of 34½ sacks an acre in an area where the average yield is closer to 20 sacks. "I boosted wheat yields from 60 bushels an acre to 90 bushels and up, and a large part of the credit goes to USS Nitrogen Fertilizers."

Profit from the experience of Mr. Hunsaker and other successful western farmers. Insist on USS Nitrogen Fertilizers—available from your local dealer. USS Ammonium Nitrate (33½% N), USS Ammonium Sulfate (21% N, 24% Sulfur), and USS Anhydrous Ammonia (82% N) are made by United States Steel.
