"The Babe and I" by Mrs. Babe Ruth describes simply and directly the human side of the living legend, Babe's triumphs, his personal weaknesses, his sparkling humor and humility and his last years.

"A Southern Moderate Speaks" by Brooks Hays, the former congressman from the Arkansas district which includes Little Rock, describes his lifelong concern with race relations and his efforts during his political career to better them and to help find the proper balance between moral and political considerations.

"Double Dealers" by Alexander Klein offers final proof that there is no limit to the ingenuity of crooks and no shortage of cooperative "suckers."

"What Makes You Tick?" published by This Week magazine, contains 40 intriguing and self-revealing "you" quizzes designed to entertain and to help you know yourself better.

"That Revolutionary Christ" by Allan Knight Chalmers is a vigorous, hard-hitting book about the practical application of religion to problems of life today.

"Flowers of the World" by Robert S. Lemmon contains 600 new color plates of familiar and exotic flowers with fascinating stories of their influence on man.

"New Mathematics" by Irving Adler, pre-supposing only a knowledge of plane geometry sets out to show the reader what lies beyond high school mathematics.

"Looking Up" by Jane Boyle Needham tells of her fight to resume a normal life after being stricken by polio.

"The Mountain Is Young" by Han Suyin has for its setting Nepal and is a love story told with all the fervor which made "A Many-Splendored Thing" such an unforgettable book.

"The Enemy Stars" by Poul Anderson presents a story of life and death in the farthest reaches of outer space. The reader is taken on a voyage which is at once an epic adventure and a supreme testing of the human spirit.

"The Risk" by Cecilia Bartholomew is a perceptive novel of a good man's collapse under stress.

Common Sense About Gifted Children by Willard Abraham sheds light upon such subjects as: Who are the gifted children? How can they be identified? What kinds of education should they have? How should teachers and parents act toward gifted children?

Nutrition For You by Robert S. Goodhart tells the truth about food fads and fancies and points the way to better health through better nourishment for you and your family.

Two excellent books for those interested in Astronomy are Looking At the Stars by Michel W. Ovenden and This Is Astronomy by Lloyd Motz.

Baby Girl Born
To Don Fritts'
Wednesday, 15thBy Mrs. Dwight Seward

APPLE VALLEY—Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fritts are parents of a 9½-pound baby girl born July 15 at Malheur Memorial hospital. She has been named Teresa Ann, and was welcomed by a sister and two brothers when she was brought home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Honey recently spent a week vacationing at McCall, Idaho. Following their return home they entertained several guests including Mr. and

New Crop Records
Seen for Oregon;
Corn, Beans Lead

Oregon farmers are setting some new crop records this year with a record corn crop in prospect and snap bean production already passing all earlier records, reports Mrs. Elvera Horrell, extension agricultural economist at Oregon State college.

The largest corn crop ever produced in Oregon is due for harvest this fall, according to reports from the U. S. department of agriculture. A harvest of more than 4¼ million bushels is forecast—a third above last year and close to triple the average harvest of the past 10 years.

This means that for the first time since pioneer days, corn production in the state may equal, or even exceed, use of corn in this area.

Oregon's output of snap beans for processing is again passing all earlier records. The state leads all other states in snap bean production, with some 91,500 tons expected here this year.

If Oregon's snap bean production reaches this total, it will top last year's record by 3 percent and amount to almost half again the average production of the past 10 years.

Other crops in the state with above-last-year and above-average prospects include filberts, peaches, pears, strawberries, lettuce, grapes, green processing peas, dry peas and hops, Mrs. Horrell said. These predictions were based on conditions in the state on July 1, reported by Oregon growers to the USDA crop reporting board.

Weather conditions in the state during the rest of the growing season hold the key to final production totals.

JAMES BERGAM COMPLETES
BASIC ARMY COURSE

Pvt. James C. Bergam, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Bergam, 626 North Second, Nyssa, completed the eight-week basic Army administration course July 3 at Fort Ord, Calif.

Bergam received training in typing, record keeping and Army clerical procedures.

The 19-year-old soldier entered the Army in February 1959. He was graduated from Nyssa high school in 1958 and was employed by the Union Pacific railroad before entering the Army.
