Farmers Must Keep Crew Leader Records

According to the Social Security office, in La Grande, beginning with 1959 every farmer who has work done by a farm labor crew is required by Internal Revenue service regulations to keep a record of the name, permanent address, and the employer's identification number of each crew leader who furnishes him workers for farm work.

The crew leaders referred to in the regulations are those who are employers of the members of the crew.

The crew leader is the employer of the members of the crew if (1) he furnishes them to the farmer and pays them and (2) there is no written agreement with the farm operator providing that the crew leader himself is an employee of the farmer.

If the farmer has a written agreement with the crew leader showing that the latter is his employee, the farmer is not required to keep a record of the crew leader's address, but in this case the farmer must make regular social security reports and pay taxes on the wages paid to the crew leader and to the members of the crew.

The new requirement is contained in the Agricultural Employer's Social Security Tax Guide for 1959 (Circular A). Additional information and copies of the guide may be secured from any office of the Internal Revenue Service or the Social Security Administration.
