The rains of the past two weeks have hindered the local farmers in the harvesting of fall crops and have done considerable damage to the clover and alfalfa seed. The rains accompanied by warm weather have caused some of the seeds to sprout, especially the first crop seed. With favorable weather this week, much of the average will be harvested. The water has been turned out of the ditches and the ditch rider, Al Simpson, is taking crop reports. College young people have returned to their various places of learning. Enrolled at OSC are James McKinley, Frank Pratt and Margaret Butler and Allen Fahrenbruch doing graduate work in science. Wallace Butler is a sophomore at EOC in La Grande.
