County Court Okehs Expense of Publishing 'Handbook for Jurors'

Jury duty for residents of Malheur county will be made easier and less confusing by the newly published "Handbook for Jurors" prepared as a special service by the Oregon State Bar with support of Malheur county commissioners.

Malheur county court was one of 31 Oregon county governments which cooperated in publication of "Handbook for Jurors," by underwriting the cost of printing copies to be distributed to jurors in their respective county courts.

Baker, Klamath, Lane and Marion counties did not participate in the project, according to the state bar office.

First printing was 50,000. Dean F. Bryson, president of the Oregon State Bar, stated that "it is the hope of the bar that a copy of this booklet will find its way into the hands of every Oregon citizen called to serve on a jury."

Contents of the booklet, written by a special committee of the state bar under the direction of the bar's public service and information committee, deals with the role of the jury and juror, examination of jurors, evidence, types of cases, definitions of terms commonly heard during a trial and various other subjects pertinent to jury duty.

This public service project brought words of commendation from Chief Justice William J. McCallister of the Supreme Court of the State of Oregon who said: "The Handbook for Jurors prepared by the Oregon State Bar for distribution in our trial courts is an excellent and informative guide which I am sure will be of great value to our citizens in performing their duties and obligations as jurors."
