

NYSSA'S ROGUES' GALLERY

Mission Completed!

A parachutist was dangling from a scraggly old tree on a Kentucky farm. In answer to the farmer's query as to what in the infernal tarnation he was doing up there, he replied, "We were out on maneuvers, and I was trying to set a record."

"Wal, I reckon as to how ya did," the farmer said solemnly. After squirting a bug with tobacco juice, he continued, "You're the fust man to climb down a tree when you hain't yet clumb up it."

Indian Wedding

Warm night, in June
Stars shine, big moon
In park, on bench
With girl, in clench
Me smart, me fast
Never let chance pass
Me say, me love
Her coo, like dove

Me say get hitched
She say OK
Wedding bells, they ring
Honeymoon, everything
Settle down, married life
Happy now, got wife
Another night, next June
Stars shine, big moon

Ain't happy no more
Baby cry, me walk floor
Wife mad, her fuss
Me mad, me cuss

Life now one big spat
Nagging wife, howling brat
Realize at last
Me to d--- fast!

—Clarence Paden

Problem Solved

For reasons which are obscure many youngsters neglect to write home when they're away at college or at camp. And their parents naturally worry.

Well, sir and ma'am if you're the parents of a non-writer, here's a suggestion from David B. Blue: "Just write the kid your usual letter," he described the plan. "Then add a P.S. 'Hope you can use the $10 I have enclosed.' Then don't enclose it."

"The kid may not have written home for a long time, but that message to him will bring a letter in a hurry. And he'll add his own worried P.S. 'I didn't find the $10 you mentioned.'"

Maybe Later?

"No, Mr. President, I haven't started building my bomb shelter yet. I don't even have a tornado shelter, although I live in an area which has an alert every two or three years or so."

"I've always felt that one cannot dodge a tornado. I'm not a fatalist. I've always suspected if I left the sanctity of my home to run for the storm cellar, it would be just my luck to trot into the path of the twister."

"I have somewhat the same feeling about A, H and N-bombs, although that isn't my real reason for not buying a shelter."

"You see, due to some monumental mismanagement on my part and a few unavoidable conditions completely within my control, I managed over a period of years to get us somewhat in debt."

"We've been working for a year or more to get those paid off, and if you must know, we feel that we just simply can't afford to go any further into the hole."

Just about the time a woman thinks her work is done, she becomes a grandmother.

Even a mosquito doesn't get a slap on the back until he starts to work.

IF (Not by Kipling)

If a man's after money, he's money-mad; if he keeps it, he's a capitalist; if he spends it, he's a play-boy; if he doesn't get it, he's a ne'er-do-well; if he doesn't try to get it, he lacks ambition.

If he gets it without working for it, he's a parasite; and if he accumulates it after a lifetime of hard work, people call him a fool who never got anything out of life.—Victor Oliver.
