Patient: "What do you charge for extracting a tooth?"
Dr. Olsen: "Five dollars."
Patient: "What! For only two seconds work?"
Dr. Olsen: "Well, if you wish, I can extract it very slowly."

Wyatt Smith was walking down the street when he saw a sign over Brower's Plumbing shop. It read, Cast Iron Sinks.
"By Jiminy!" said Wyatt, "Any-one knows that."

A boy was down on his hands and knees looking for something on the sidewalk when Patrolman Haile approached.
"What are you doing?" asked Haile.
"I lost a silver dollar on First street," was the answer.
"But this is Second street," the patrolman said. "If you lost the dollar on First street, why are you looking for it on Second?"
"Because there's more light here," said the boy.

A TALL One . . .

Leo Fife: "Once when I was at Unity, I caught a trout that was three feet long."
Ray Huffman: "That's nothing, when I was fishing I pulled a lantern out of the water and it was still burning."
Leo: "You can't expect me to believe that, Ray."
Ray: "All right, then you cut two feet off your trout and I'll blow out the lantern."

When Patricia Wahlert was taken to church for the first time, she was very impressed by it all. And when everyone knelt down, she whispered, "Mummy, what are they doing now?"
"Shhh!" said Nellie. "They're getting ready to say their prayers."
"What?" yelled Pat in amazement. "With all their clothes on?"

Vaughn Stringer was trying to fill out a Union Pacific railroad company claim sheet for a cow that had been killed on the track. He came to the last item: "Disposition of the carcass."
After puzzling over the question for some time, he wrote: "Kind and gentle."
