THESE LITTLE PIGGIES WENT A SWIMMIN'!

While fishing Sunday on Snake river near the Corey place on East Enterprise avenue, Maurice Corey and his nephew, Bill Garner, saw swimming toward them what they thought to be strange looking ducks.

Upon closer observation, they discovered they were five 100-pound pigs belonging to George Boody who lives on the island across the river from the Corey home.

The men yelled across to him to tell him that his pigs were on their way over via the river. Boody had to travel eight miles by road and the trio finally caught up with the swine about a mile west of the Corey place.

The Garners are visiting here from Corona, Calif.

At the Library . . .

"Thunder on the Mountain" by Giff Cheshire. The story of Chief Joseph and the heroic retreat of the Nez Perce.

"In a Summer Season" by Elizabeth Taylor. Kate Hallam, recently widowed and lonely after an unusually happy marriage, succumbs to the charm of a young man 10 years her junior and marries him. Most of the action takes place during one long, hot summer season but it epitomizes the whole course of an unwise marriage and symbolizes the phenomenon of middle-aged love.

"Rembrandt" by Gladys Schmitt. A biographical novel that presents the warm and very human story of Rembrandt van Rijn, one of the world's greatest painters.

"Making of the President" by Theodore H. White. The U.S. presidential election of 1960 is viewed in perspective in this resume that goes back to the meeting at Kennedy's home early in 1960 at which he launched his campaign for the nomination. As the winning candidate and the winning party—also the party with more aspirants for the nomination—Kennedy and the Democrats are in the forefront of the account.

SOME SMART ALECK STOLE HALF HER LIFE

She'll miss those carefree summers at the beach, the dances, the parties—so many happy times. And all because some driver ignored a warning signal. Law violations like that are at the root of most traffic accidents. When every driver obeys the rules, most of this tragic crippling and killing will stop. Do your part—and see that others do the same. Where traffic laws are strictly obeyed, accidents go down.

FACE THIS FACT

Drivers are the No. 1 cause of traffic accidents which last year injured 1,400,000 and killed 38,000. This year an increase is threatened. How long must this go on? YOU can supply the answer!
