SHATTERED!

Just the Facts, Men . . .

Here's welcome news. Someone is doing something about the job of encouraging employment opportunities for the fast-growing labor force of mature workers — the men and women 45 years of age or older.

That "someone" is the National Association of Manufacturers. That's the organization made up of more than 18,000 member companies — most of them small. And here's the official NAM policy on employment practices for mature workers:

"Employers are urged to observe voluntary hiring practices which give consideration to skills and abilities rather than to any arbitrary age factors."

In a first-rate study just published, entitled "The Productive Years—Ages 45-65," the NAM's industrial relations division explodes a few myths surrounding the desirability of hiring mature workers.

The myths — and the actual facts — are eyeopeners:

Myth No. 1—"I can't take a chance on an older worker — he's liable to be absent too often."
Fact—Such fears are groundless. As a group, older workers are absent fewer times each year than younger counterparts.

Myth No. 2—"I'm afraid for the safety of the older worker. He's more accident-prone."
Fact—All available research shows the older worker to be more safety-conscious, less accident-prone.

Myth No. 3—"I have to keep production at a high level. An older worker might not keep up with the rest."
Fact—If there is any difference in the rate of production of an older worker, it does not show until after 55. Even then it is an individual factor.

Myth No. 4—"I need versatility. Too many older workers are set in their ways."
Fact—Some older workers are inclined to be inflexible; so are some younger workers. The important consideration is the individual's outlook — his "functional age."

Summing it up, friends — since when did a few gray hairs cut down creativity — and production? Let us all act our age when it comes to giving mature job applicants a fair shake.

According to U.S. News and World Report, Kennedy is urging about 70 ideas for new ways to spend money, or for ways that spending plans already approved can be increased. (The Russian Communists said they could win the U.S. without every going to war!)

The Left-Wingers attempt to classify all Right-Wingers as being more dangerous than the Communists in this country, just because a small part goes out on a limb, is like saying you don't go to church because there are hypocrites that also go there.

Under orders from the president, Negroes are to get more federal jobs, and better ones, if they are qualified. A recent survey shows that of 2.2 million federal workers 13 percent are Negroes, while Negroes make up only 10.5 percent of the total population. (This is an election year and most of the colored people are concentrated in the large cities where most of the electoral votes are located.)

If you suspect that you are not getting all your mail it may be because you do not show your box number or street address. Under a new set of postal regulations effective last Dec. 15 postal workers do not have to deliver your mail without this — although they may know exactly where you live and have delivered your mail for years before. If you write the Journal be sure to use BOX 785 in the address.

"There is always free cheese in a mousetrap—but you have never seen a happy mouse there."

The Communists tell the Russian people that half the population of the U.S. is starving to death and in the next breath brag that in the next two years they will catch up with our standard of living.

Old-fashioned, conservative Americans must be careful not to offend old-fashioned Communists.

"People are unpredictable — they do odd things to get even."

DID YOU KNOW? A newly developed typewriter hears, spells and records the spoken word? It picks up syllables in a microphone, refers to spelling information in an electronic "memory" and pecks out the letters.

All packers who deliver meat (hogs, cattle and sheep) to the government must render them unconscious in a painless manner before killing?

Thin persons are favorite targets of mosquitoes? Their metabolism is higher — they release more heat and this attracts the insects.

Scarcity of pure water is fast becoming a major problem for many cities? The Population Reference bureau estimates that by 1975 this country will be using 88 percent of all available water, with a population increase of 35 million.
