4 1/2 TONS OF WATER LIFTED 300 FEET FOR ONE PENNY Electric Power Is A Pumper's Biggest Bargain! A big 200-horsepower pump used to irrigate Snake River Valley's fertile fields raises 4 1/2 tons of water an equivalent of 100 feet higher than Idaho's Capitol Dome — with one penny's worth of electricity! No other cost incurred by irrigators — whether wages, equipment, supplies or materials — has held the line against inflation as well as the cost of electric power. Penny bargains like one-cent parking for your car are rapidly becoming things of the past, due to inflation that inevitably affects every thing you buy — but the penny spent for electricity is a big one. IDAHO POWER Electricity... Does So MUCH—Costs So LITTLE!
