'Prologue to Parma' To Be Staged Soon By Idaho Neighbors

Based on actual happenings in this vicinity is the play, "A Prologue to Parma," to be presented in Parma late in March as part of the Idaho Centennial celebration.

One scene is laid in the railroad construction camp of 1883 located on the Idaho side of the Snake where the railroad bridge crosses the river. Another setting is Old Fort Boise in 1852, for which an interior likeness of the fort has been painted by Art Yensen.

The plot of the four-act play is an ingenious combination of fact and fiction—the fictitious part growing out of a number of gruesome events happening in the early days. With a few minor changes, it could well have been named "A Prologue to Nyssa."

A cast of 32 students and townspeople is working to give a first-rate presentation March 29-30 at the high school gymnasium.
