Sen. Yurri Describes Recent Brief Illness

amounts have been cut from the budgets of the supreme court, state treasurer, racing commission and several other agencies. However, if the goal of the budget, which is to reduce the budget by $20 million, is to be accomplished, great and serious cuts will be required in the education budget.

No final action has been taken by the committees on the new tax program. The tax "package" should emerge within the next two or three weeks. In all probability, there will be little change in the tax structure but certainly taxes will increase.

Sex Hearings Attract Crowds

The largest hearings in the session have been those on sex deviate problems. As many as 450 people, primarily women, have attended these committee hearings. Perhaps the most important bill is one which would authorize the apprehension of a person who is regarded as sexually dangerous to minors.

This is known as "civil arrest" and could be invoked even though the person detained has not committed a crime. If passed, this could be a dangerous precedent.

Railroad Problems Studied

Large hearings have been held on the two bills which involve brakemen. Oregon is one of seven states in the union which provides that a railroad must have three brakemen on each train. The railroads maintain that in many, many instances two are sufficient and that the additional employee, who allegedly has no duties, is unnecessary and costly.

The railroads also maintain that laws should not be passed or exist forcing private industry to have a stated number of employees nor that it conduct its business in a way specified by the legislature insofar as concerns the internal operations and management functions.

On the other hand, the railroad employees claim that three brakemen are necessary for safety purposes and that unless the law requires the railroads to use at least three brakemen, they will reduce the number to two. The employees maintain that safety would be reduced by the reduction in the number and that hundreds of Oregon employees will be put out of work.

Miscellaneous Legislation

If the following bills become law . . . (1) At least 25 percent of the legal voters of a political subdivision must cast their ballots on any bond question before the election is valid (HB 1716); (2) It will be legal to trap muskrats the year around (SB 394); (3) Tax collector would be required to mail notice of foreclosure proceedings by registered or certified mail to taxpayers on foreclosure list. This would be in addition to the usual publication in the newspaper presently required (SB 400).

(4) The operator of trailer parks will have a lien on house trailers for rental space and utility service until the rent or utilities are paid (SB 381); (5) Raising cattle will become a hazardous occupation forcing the owner to contribute to the State Industrial Accident commission fund (Senator Willner's SB 377); (6) The fees for filing papers such as deeds will be increased and so will the sheriff's fees for serving papers (SB 365).

The nearest other VW dealers are in Baker and Boise.

The new agency is headed by Ross Bates who has been sales manager for Riviera Motors of Portland, area distributors for the foreign-made cars.

Grand Opening Friday

Bates announced that the grand opening would be held Friday and Saturday at 310 S.W. Fourth avenue and that the public is welcome.

"All equipment in our service department is brand new," Bates said, "and we have an outstanding Volkswagen expert in Rudy Moerkes to head the department."

Bates' son, Allen, will head the parts department and they will have a complete used car operation.

Mexican-American Integration Seen In Junior High School

secure new members. Manuel Silva and Teresa Elqueabal are leading the contest, each having secured six new members.

Club Officers Named

Roberta Breshears is president of the All-Americans; Arlene Valdez, vice president; Becky Parks, secretary; Cliff Winchester, sergeant-at-arms; Royce Zobell, Junia Mitchell, Laurel Beck, Carlos Parra, Margie Eldred, Martha Rodriguez and Teresa Elqueabal, trustees.

Attesting to the fact that this is an organization worthy of note and commendations is the fact that stories concerning this club have appeared in the National Parent-Teachers magazine, the Oregon PTA magazine and the Seattle PTA Comments. These were mainly regarding the organization of the Mexican-American PTA, but since this AAC played such a prominent part in development of the PTA the club should get credit for this national recognition.

Adult Classes Organized

Last year the club, through the promotion of Mr. Nolen, aided by Mrs. Josephine Rigney, Mrs. Harriet Brumbach, Mrs. Dorothy Nolen and Mrs. Joan Soderstrom, started an adult evening school for the Mexican-Americans. It was well attended and enthusiastically supported.

In a great many instances, people who had worked all day in the fields turned out night after night to take advantage of the training offered.

Steps are being taken to start a similar course this spring and volunteer teachers for the project are urged to sign up.

NAZARENE CHURCH GROUPS ATTEND POTLUCK DINNERS

A potluck dinner was served Tuesday evening in the recreation room of the Nazarene parsonage to members of the Lela Jackson Missionary chapter and adult Sunday school class.

A film entitled "This Is Your Church" was shown to the group. The Homebuilders Sunday school class, comprised of young married couples, met in the parsonage recreation room for a potluck dinner following Sunday morning worship service. Teacher for the class is Mrs. Roy Wild.

Craving for Salt

If, for any reason, your water consumption goes up markedly, your desire for salt will also rise. You will continue to crave more salt until your body has adjusted to the change.

Work Smarter . . . Not Harder

By BERNICE STRAWN, Extension Home Management Specialist
We've just finished talking to more than 2,000 of you Oregon homemakers about your laundry problems. You've been telling us laundry isn't a simple matter these days. We agree . . . It's a science.

Unfortunately, there just wasn't time to answer all the questions at these laundry clinics sponsored by the Extension service in seven counties. We'll share with you some of the questions which come up over and over again.

TO WHITEN SHIRTS . . .

Dacron and cotton shirts get yellowish. How can you get them white again?

The brighteners in most detergents work better on cotton than on Dacron and other polyester fibers. Try one of the blue all-purpose detergents (not the dishwashing liquids or powders). These contain a different brightener which is effective on man-made fibers.

Thoroughly dampen the shirts with water, then soak in full strength liquid detergent for 15 to 20 minutes. Next put them in the washer and launder in hot water.

The fabric will be more wrinkled with hot water and require some touch up pressing this time, but you'll only need to use this treatment occasionally. These shirts may also be bleached if you wish.

Always launder these shirts in the machine. They'll never come clean with three jiggles up and down in a wash basin.

HOW CAN I KEEP WHITE NYLONS WHITE?

Wash white nylons only by themselves, not even with white cottons. Don't try to sneak in a pastel garment. White nylon picks up the slightest trace of color. In rare cases, colored labels on garments have released enough dye to cause discoloration. Check to make sure there are no such labels on your nylons. Either liquid or powdered bleaches can be used on nylons.

If nylons are already dingy, you can restore the original whiteness with a color remover. This chemical is available in small packages at drug and variety stores.

PERSPIRATION ODORS in athletic outfits are hard to get out. What can I do?

Soak for 30 minutes in a deodorant such as you would use for diapers. There are several products of this type in the supermarket. Then put the clothes in the washer with about 1 1/2 times the amount of detergent you usually use. Add hot water if fabric will stand it and wash. If adding this much detergent produces too many suds, try a low sudsing product.

CARPET BURN REMEDY . . .

If your husband's best friend drops a lighted cigarette on your new broadloom, here's a way to remedy the situation (the carpet, not the friendship).

Chances are, only the surface is charred. Clip off the blackened ends of the tufts with small sharp scissors. Next sponge the surface with a mixture of one teaspoon light-duty detergent (such as you use for fine fabrics), one teaspoon white vinegar and one quart of water. Don't overdo rubbing the spot.

Blot the wet area with a clean cloth pad or paper towels weighted down with a book. Replace with dry cloth or towel often. Don't leave it to air dry.

If the burn is deep, some re-weaving may be necessary and you'll need to have professional help.
