

NHS Faculty Members Reveal Plans For Various Activities This Summer

(From the Nyssa High Bulldog)
Students aren't the only ones with "busy" schedules this summer. Upon interviewing the teachers of NHS this Bulldog reporter concluded students weren't so unfortunate after all.

Summer school heads the list for many. After a short vacation, Mrs. Virginia Steffens plans to attend a workshop session at University of Puget Sound in Tacoma, Wash. The University of Idaho has captured Jack Bowen. After attending San Francisco State College for a one-week workshop in poetry, Clyde Swisher will be spending the rest of the summer at McCall, Idaho.

Mrs. Bonita Witty has plans to attend a Language Institute at Moscow, Idaho, under the National Defense Act; and Donald Bates will fill the role of an NEA state delegate for one week in Detroit, Mich.

Summer jobs fill the schedules of Harry McGinley, Kinsey Keveren and Bob Morford, who intends to take a fishing trip first. Charles Quinowski will be learning about the government and the United Nations in Washington, D.C., and New York City. Mrs. Harriet Brumbach will be teaching at the Cairo School.

Miss Margery Nihart plans to make several short trips and after a trip to Colorado, Miss Jeanne Poulton plans just to read and relax. Miss Joleen Reece will spend two weeks at church camp and the remainder of her vacation at summer school.

Carl Devin has a full schedule visiting ag projects, incoming freshmen and attending an FFA camping trip. Bob "Q" Smith, after a two-week vacation in Alabama, will be instructing the summer music program and will also teach for two weeks at the University of Nevada.

Dale Overstake has made no plans yet, but Mel Calhoun has just made public his enlistment to aid the revolutionary movement against Fidel Castro in Cuba.

Douglas Wilkerson plans to be working for the Bureau of Land Management in Vale. Bill Barton will be spending most of his time at home taking care of his garden or perhaps attending summer school.

Nyssans to Receive MS Degrees Sunday At U of O Exercises

The 86th annual commencement and baccalaureate exercises at the University of Oregon will be held at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, June 9, with 1,851 candidates slated for advanced and baccalaureate degrees.

This year's graduating class is slightly under the all-time record figure of 1,892 set in June 1962. The load on the June ceremony has been eased because of summer commencement, held for the first time in August 1962. At that time, 400 received degrees. A similar summer commencement will be held again this August.

Included in the 1963 class are the following candidates who will receive indicated degrees if requirements are completed. They are John Edwards Connors, master of science. He is a son of E. A. Connors of Tulsa, Okla., and is registered from 807 Adrian boulevard, Nyssa.

Receiving a master of science degree is Donna Lee Wilson, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. (Bud) Wilson, 807 Adrian boulevard, Nyssa. She is presently residing in Junction City.

NYSSA'S 1963 GRADUATES ATTEND SUGAR BOWL PARTY

Following the recent Sunday evening PTA reception for Nyssa's 1963 seniors, the graduates held a bowling party at the Sugar Bowl with Jim Kodama in charge of arrangements.

The students were given special reduced rates covering both bowling and refreshments. Drinks were provided by Clover Lawn dairy and a congratulatory cake was furnished by proprietors of the bowling establishment.

Adult chaperones were Mrs. Thelma Hammon and Woody Seuell.

Baby-sitter: A teenager who behaves like a grown-up while the grown-ups are out behaving like teenagers.

TERRY THOMPSON RECEIVES NAVAL RESERVE PROMOTION

Terry Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Thompson of Nyssa, received his promotion from seaman apprentice to seaman in the U. S. Naval Reserve effective May 29. He was presented his chevrons by Commander Gene Stunz, commanding officer of the Naval Reserve surface division, in ceremonies Wednesday night.

Thompson will go on active duty in the Navy July 13 with this rating, which he has earned through participation in the reserve program at the Naval Reserve Training center, Boise, every Wednesday evening.

Homemakers Can Reduce Food Bills 10% by Taking Advantage of Specials

Can you save money by shopping for food "specials"? Are they really good buys? Do markets with the best specials offer the lowest food prices?

A study at Stanford university, Calif., reported by the Food Research Institute, shows that shoppers can very well reduce food bills up to 10 percent by taking advantage of specials in super markets.

Two Stanford economists completed a study of specials advertised over an eight-week period in eight super markets in Palo Alto, Calif. They compared prices of 225 food items. During the eight weeks, most of the items showed up several times in ads. Altogether, the researchers made 1546 price checks. They concluded that had the shopper bought all of the specials and used them to advantage, she would have saved over 20 percent. If she purchased one-fourth specials and the rest of the groceries at regular prices, she would trim her bills by at least 10 percent.

Advertised Items Reduced
In 92 percent of the comparisons, the price of the item specialized was lower than in other stores. Largest reductions were made on the products most frequently advertised.

NYSSANS VISIT IN BOISE

Mrs. Walian Morgan and sons accompanied her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Higley of Vale, to Boise Saturday, where they visited Mrs. Morgan's grandmother, Mrs. Emma Love of Napa, Calif. Mrs. Love was visiting in the home of her brother, William Hendrix in the Idaho capital city. Mrs. Morgan and sons visited Sunday with her parents in Vale. Her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Hank Elliott of Richland, Ore., were weekend guests in the Higley home.

that specials were a misleading indicator of a store's overall price level. The Palo Alto stores in this study with the lowest priced specials generally maintained higher prices than their competitors on other products.

There are some obvious reasons for stores to carry specials. They include:

1. A traditional leader—selected to attract customers into the store in the hope they will also buy other items.
2. An abundant supply—due to peak season or because of an exceptionally large crop from a recent production period.
3. Seasonal preference—For instance, during Lent there are nearly always specials on ham, lamb, seafood and eggs. Stores that plan such themes may buy ahead in large volume and obtain price concessions which are passed on to the consumer.
4. Forced competition—Advertising copy for food ads is often prepared after close attention is given to what others are featuring and which of their specials seem to be most popular with customers.
5. New products are often introduced by use of introductory prices or special displays in stores or in newspaper advertising.

Processors, distributors, wholesalers or retailers make the specific decisions as to store specials, but it's the consumer who makes the decision whether or not to take advantage of food specials. Shoppers who have enough room to store some extra items, enough leeway in the budget to be able to take advantage of lower prices when they are available and sufficient menu flexibility to accommodate specials are the ones who can take best advantage of advertised specials.

Obviously, too, specials can't pay off if (1) the shopper has to travel to several different areas, (2) time is at a premium or (3) the buyer doesn't use to advantage foods bought on specials.
