Camping Boy Scouts Take Three-Day Hike

Carrying 25 to 40-pound packs with tents, food, bedding and equipment, Boy Scouts of troop 445 spent three days last week hiking in the beautiful and rugged mountains of the Wallowa-Whitman National Forest.
 The boys hiked to the head waters of East Camp creek, then over the divide and into the valley of the Little Malheur river, covering about 35 miles. They discovered many wild flowers, including wild roses, iris, bluebells and larkspur as well as seeing several head of deer.
 According to Scoutmaster Jim Skeen, the Scouts proved themselves capable campers. Even though they did all their own camp making, cooking and carried their own gear, they all finished the hike in good shape.
 Scouts making the hike were Royce Zobell, Scott Jefferies, Douglas Howes, Russell Myrick and Stanley Palmer.
