A Few Good Reasons For Shopping at Home

Whenever merchants get together, a topic that will come up sooner or later is catalogs and how to combat them. In the old days of poor roads and slow transportation when people didn't get to town often, mail order houses filled an important need.

The only reason mail order houses can stay in business is because they make people think that they save money. But when all matters are taken into consideration, mail order firms do not sell for less.

Here is one reason why: Mail order houses pay no state, county, city or school taxes. Hometown merchants do pay these taxes through property, franchise, income and other levies.

Here's another reason: Every time residents of a community go to the catalog or out of their community to buy something that could be purchased locally, they are reducing the inventory of stock and confidence in their community.

You draw dividends from every business enterprise in your community because trade builds communities with better opportunities, better schools, churches and neighbors.

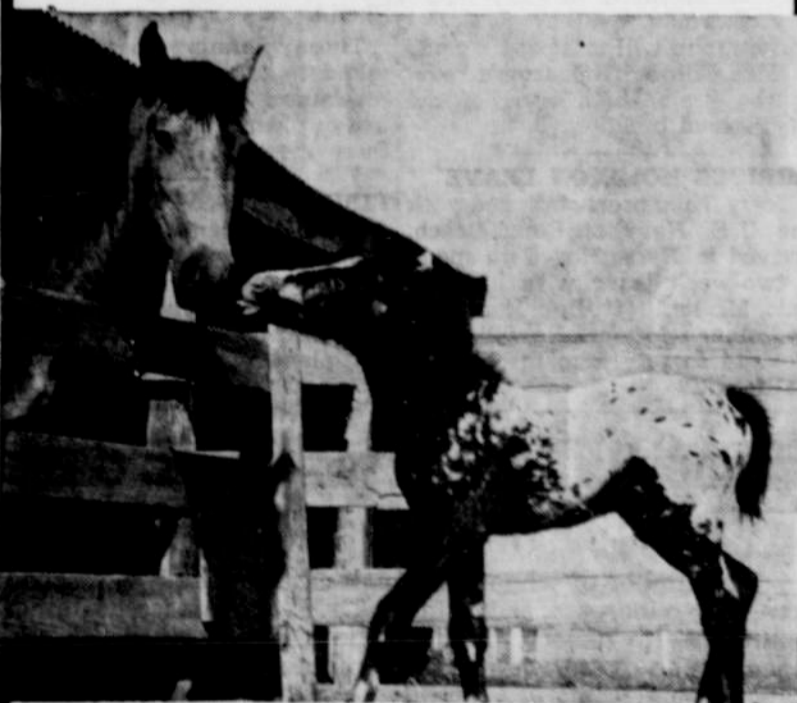

MUST I GO TO WORK?

"Oh, Daddy-O, must I go to work...?"
"No, no, my lucky son, We're living now on easy street On dough from Washington."
"We've left it up to Uncle Sam, So don't get exercised. Nobody has to give a damn— We've all been subsidized..."

"Don't worry, son, there's not a quirk In this here noble plan... He simply soaks the ones who work And helps the common man..."
"But, fathah, won't there come a time When they peter out of cash, When we'll not get a single dime And things will go to smash?"
"Your faith in you is shrinking, son, Though I tried to raise you well— You do too damn much thinking, son, To become a LIBERAL...!"

IT'S YOUR LAW

By Oregon State Bar

Warning... Look Where You Walk!

Architectural styles change just as do styles in automobiles and clothes. Modern office buildings and stores make great use of glass, even in their doors and entryways.

Occasionally we hear of someone walking into an all-glass door and injuring himself. In such a case, is the proprietor liable for damages?

In the majority of cases, where a person walks into a stationary glass door and is injured, the courts have held the proprietor not negligent and hence not liable for damages.

In one case the court noted that the door was in good repair and that the proprietor was not negligent simply because the door was one large piece of glass. Even so, the court said, the door was not wholly invisible and a door is expected at the entrance to a store. The court added that door fronts of solid glass are commonly used today and are accepted as sound and safe building construction.

Different facts may well change the result and make the owner liable. Such was the case where a hotel installed a glass wall between a lounge and the lobby closing off an entry used for some time. Also, where an office building had glass doors marked with red reflector tapes and removed the tapes without warning.

So, too, a home builder was held liable to suit for injuries to a child who walked through a sliding glass door at an open house. The child and his mother had just visited a similar adjoining house, also open for display, where the sliding doors to the patio had been open.

The court here was especially careful to point out the greater duty on the owner, who should have anticipated children would be attending the open house with their parents.

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney, who is completely advised of the facts involved. Even a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

City Manager Praises Conduct of Students

To Mr. Charles Quinowski And Other Members Of The Nyssa School Faculty

Dear Sirs:
On behalf of Chief F. E. Petrie of the Nyssa Police department and myself, please accept our sincere appreciation for the manner in which some three thousand students conducted themselves during your recent "Hootenanny."

It was a great success. The police chief and two officers handled the foot and vehicle traffic and I feel did an excellent job. Yet without the cooperation of the students, their position would have become difficult.

During my five years in Nyssa I have found our students as well as those of the surrounding cities to be a compliment to our youth of today. I trust this to be a reflection on both their home and educational training and worthy of recognition in that we adults can rest with assurance that our young adults will develop a safe tomorrow.

Sincerely,
A. H. COLBY

Mr. Ted Brammer, Editor
Nyssa Gate City Journal
Nyssa, Oregon

Dear Ted:
Many times, in years past, I have wondered why it is that lots of people never seem to be quite satisfied with their job, their home, where they live, etc. It's familiar to all of us how the boy next door with talent galore goes unrecognized until he moves to another town, gains recognition there and then we can all claim we knew it all along!

I have been wondering why people can't see, appreciate and value what they have. Very recently, our daughter was hospitalized after a serious accident, and it was so vividly impressed upon my mind that here we have such a wonderful community asset as Malheur Memorial hospital but many people don't seem to realize it; be one bit impressed or proud of "our" hospital; and even go to another town for hospitalization.

Ask them why they go out of town and they usually give you excuses as useless as a leaky bucket! Mostly they weren't treated quite right or the food wasn't just exactly right. Let's face it! When a person is ill, there's hardly anything that suits him to a tee, even at home.

What I am trying to point out is that I think whenever it becomes necessary for any of us in this area to be hospitalized, that we should make use of our hometown services, if at all possible. In most of the average cases, I think we are foolish if we don't.

The convenience of a hospital in our hometown is worth a lot in itself. When spending a lot of time with someone who is hospitalized, you aren't faced with the problem of either staying there, tired out, with no place to rest; or driving many miles home and many miles back again.

The list of doctors on the hospital staff includes the best in the valley and some of them the best in the whole northwest. Why go to Ontario or Boise for a specialist when they'll come here?

The nurses, nurses aides, lab technicians and office personnel at Malheur Memorial hospital are all wonderful. They were very friendly, interested, patient, concerned and attentive. I know our daughter couldn't possibly have received any better care anywhere. That's saying a lot, but I sincerely mean it.

Our hospital is kept so clean, the food is so appetizing and everything run so efficiently that much of the credit for its smooth operation must go to the manager, "Chuck" Smith.

I bow to all these dedicated people who, with God's helping hand, are Miracle Workers! I am so thankful that they are right here at home, too!

Sincerely,
ERIS BERTRAM

ASC Committee Election for 1964 Scheduled Nov. 29

J. P. Bunch, chairman of Malheur county ASC committee, reported recently that elections for 1964 ASC committee members will be held Nov. 29. Ballots will be mailed to all voters about Nov. 19.

A minimum slate of nominees for election will be prepared by present county and community committeemen. Each eligible voter, however, has the privilege of nominating one or more candidates for the office. This may be done by a petition signed by six or more eligible voters.

Every farm owner or tenant who participates or is eligible to participate in any program administered by the ASC committee is eligible to vote and be a candidate for community committeeman.

Bunch said it is desirable to nominate and elect currently active farmers or ranchers who are best qualified for the positions and who will be representative of the various sections and types of agriculture in the community.

Petitions for nomination of persons for community committeemen will be received at the county ASCS office, 1252 SW Fourth avenue, P.O. Box 338, Ontario, Ore., until 4 p.m. Nov. 7.

Names of all persons nominated by a proper petition will be included in the slate of nominees on the ballot if found willing to serve and are eligible. If a person nominated by petition is found ineligible, he will be notified of such determination prior to completion of the slate of nominees and he may appeal to the county committee before Nov. 12.

First National Bank of Oregon Heads 1963 Crusade for CARE Foods in Area

Spearheaded by the First National Bank of Oregon, the 1963 CARE Food Crusade is being launched in Nyssa as part of a statewide program, it is announced by CARE's regional office in Seattle.

As a special volunteer service to CARE, the Nyssa bank is distributing Food Crusade material in the community, while serving as headquarters for the relief program planned nationally to reach four million of the neediest people in 19 countries.

Leading banks and business firms throughout the country are cooperating in this effort. Special importance is given the 1963 drive because of the emergency aid going to victims of the recent hurricane disaster in Haiti, where CARE has been asked by the U.S. government to provide food to 100,000 victims for four months.

Other Countries Receive Aid

The $1 packages, each containing 27 pounds or more of food, also go to Afghanistan, Colombia, Cyprus, Greece, Hong Kong, India, Iran, Italy, Jordan, Korea, Macau, Mexico, Pakistan, Poland, Sierra Leone, Turkey, Viet Nam, and Yugoslavia.

Each parcel is delivered in the name and address of the donor with deliveries supervised by CARE's American staff in each area. Although contents vary, they consist mainly of powdered milk, flour, corn meal, processed wheat, edible oils from U.S. Food for Peace donations of farm abundance, plus items CARE buys to meet country needs.

Projects for Future Needs

In addition to emergency programs, packages also will go to help people to feed themselves in the future, such as school-feeding projects to aid education, to sustain refugees resettled on new farm lands until crops come in, and to villagers while they build farm-to-market roads, fishing boats, irrigation systems.

Food Crusade information is available at the First National Bank of Oregon branch in Nyssa.
