Work Smarter . . . Not Harder

INABILITY TO MAKE DECISIONS

. . . consumes time and energy that could be spent doing the job with less wear and tear on you. Don't let worry slow you down. Here's a simple five-step formula to use in making any decision.

1. Think through your resources—time, money, energy, skills.
2. Just what is your goal? Get this clearly in mind.
3. What are the alternatives? Consider the pros and cons of each.
4. Take action—choose the way you think you will meet your goal.
5. Follow through and if necessary, revise your decision.

Revision doesn't mean you've made a mistake. This is a perfectly normal consequence. Every time you replace inaction with action you beat down that procrastination habit—and grow in pride of accomplishment.

TURKEY TIME IS HERE!

You can buy frozen turkey already stuffed—or without stuffing. But there's a difference in the way you handle it.

Virginia Weiser, OSU nutritionist for the extension service, tells you how.

If you buy a frozen turkey, already stuffed, cook it without thawing. Before cooking, it's all right to let it stand overnight in the refrigerator, but not at room temperature. Once you do start roasting the turkey, continue until it is finished. Do not start it one day and finish it the next.

If the frozen turkey is not stuffed, thaw it in its own wrapper, in the refrigerator. Thawing is more uniform than when thawed at room temperature. A turkey 10 to 20 pounds will take about two to three days to thaw in the refrigerator.

IS BABY'S WHITE WOOL

. . . bonnet or blanket turning yellow? After sudsing clean, bleach white wools in 3 percent hydrogen peroxide and water solution. (The druggist will sell this to you.) Add half cup peroxide to two cups water and let wool stand in solution four or five hours.

Repeat if necessary. Be sure to rinse thoroughly after bleaching. Dry wool away from heat and sun to prevent yellowing.

Try this sweeping time saver. Wet one edge of a newspaper and lay it on the kitchen floor. The paper clings to the floor and litter can be swept onto it. Roll up and toss.

DO YOU LOOK UPON HOUSEWORK AS DRUDGERY

. . . and a thankless job? If so, you use up three to four times as much energy as is actually needed to do the work, according to recent research.

Mental attitude makes the difference. Those who view homemaking as a labor of love gain satisfaction from providing for others and escape emotionally-induced fatigue. It's really worthwhile to look for the brighter side.

SPANDEX, THE NEW ELASTIC FIBER

. . . can't stand rough treatment any more than natural rubber. Elaine Carlson, OSU extension clothing specialist, says that word directly from the Elastic Fabric Manufacturer's Institute reveals some misconceptions about this product which they are trying to correct.

For instance, spandex, available under different trade names, should not be washed with chlorine bleach or it will yellow. Originally, machine washing was suggested but now they feel that hand washing will result in longer wear.

It's true that spandex is stronger than rubber. Covered spandex is stronger than bare fibers. The bare spandex power nets are likely to be weak at the seams.

DOES RAINY WEATHER MAKE DOORS STICK

. . . in your house? Good old home remedies such as wax, soap and oil help at first, but sometimes become messy. You might also try one of the silicone products. These take the squeak out of hinges and make doors and windows slide more easily.

Silicones are available under several trade names in aerosol spray cans or squeeze tubes. You'll find them in hardware, department and auto supply stores. The price varies from 25 cents up to $1.50.

BROWN SPOTS OR TINY HOLES

. . . which show up in clothes when you iron them may be due to metal buttons or zippers. This damage comes from a tricky process called electrolysis.

When you roll up a damp garment and set it aside, a chemical reaction can take place between the metal and minerals in the water or detergent which was rinsed out.

This causes the fabric to become spotted. You can prevent this by using a water softener and by being sure garments are well rinsed.

Malheur County Library Issues List Of New Books Available Saturday

New books going into circulation Saturday, Nov. 9, at Malheur county library include the following:

"My Brother Bill" by John Faulkner. A biography of William Faulkner by his brother.

"My Ireland" by Kate O'Brien. An Irish author conducts an informal tour of the country, mingling her memories with Ireland's past and present in a poetic portrayal of its many-sided character.

"Westward Tilt" by Neil Morgan. Review of the political, economic and social life in the western states.

"Archaeology" edited by Samuel Rappart. Presents sketches of great archaeologists and descriptions of archaeological discoveries and archaeological problems.

"The Vindicators" by Eugene B. Block. True stories of men accused of crimes they did not commit and of the courageous police officers, lawyers and criminologists who set them free.

"This Is Mental Illness" by Vernon W. Grant. Using case histories to illustrate his points, a clinical psychologist here explains mental illness in simple, non-technical language.

"A Sane and Happy Life" by Rose N. Franzblau. Practical information and advice about the perplexing questions of growing up, including the emotional problems of infancy, adolescence and adulthood.

"America, America" by Elia Kazen. The story of Stavros, a Greek boy from Anatolia where in 1896 the Turks slaughter and humiliate at any excuse. Stavros and his friend dream of going to America but only one of them lives to achieve his goal.

"Pet Cats" by Doris Bryant. Their care and handling.

"Scent of Water" by Elizabeth Goudge. A love story in which the heroine's spiritual growth compensates her for the indubitable fact that the blind man she has come to love turns back to the wife he had almost lost.

"Dreams Are for Tomorrow" by Agnes Sanford. A novel set in a small New Hampshire village that deals with a plumber who has always dreamed of owning a farm and his wife who had always dreamed of a child of her own.

"The Great White Mantle" by David O. Woodbury. The story of the ice ages and the coming of man.

"The Still Point" by Ethel F. Cornwell. A study of the attempts of six modern writers to find an absolute value from which to achieve spiritual renewal.
