FFA and FHA Meet At Pancake Supper; Fathers Attend Event

(From the Nyssa High Bulldog)

Boasting six flavors of pancakes was the FFA-FHA pancake supper held the evening of Nov. 5 in the cafeteria. All the fathers of FFA and FHA members were invited.

Members and their fathers were greeted with pumpkin identification cards. After everyone had arrived and was seated, the FHA opened the meeting with traditional opening ceremony.

Lynn Jackson, FHA president, gave a talk on the FHA, and magazine captains Janice Burns and Nadine Spitz gave pep talks to their teams.

FFA president, Doug Patterson, led a discussion on the FFA emblem, breaking it down into parts and discussing each phase. They told their activities for the year and used parliamentary procedure for their whole presentation.

Musical numbers on the program were two duets—a vocal duet by Judi Moncur and her father, Mark Moncur, and a piano duet by Lynn Jackson and Mary English.

The supper of pancakes consisted of pineapple, bacon, wiener, potato, banana or chocolate chip pancakes. Fruit, coffee, milk and various types of jellies accompanied the 'cakes.

The FFA boys ended the evening with their closing ceremony.

WHERE SHALL I BUY TODAY?

Crystal ball gazing is a pretty risky way to find values, old timer. They aren't much good in helping you discover where to buy groceries, or what to get for Aunt Hazel's birthday, or even what car to buy. But you know something? . . .

advertising sure helps! Advertising brings the world to your doorstep. It tells you what is for sale and where you can get it. It gives you descriptions, and prices, and ideas. It allows you to compare and get the most value for your money.

It saves you time, and shoe leather, and worry.

Advertising does more, too. It promotes competition and mass selling which results in the constant development of better products for less . . . and saving money is important to all of us. Sure, crystal balls might be good for some things —but for day to day value it pays to be advertised at.
