

Time to Buy Beef for Freezer Is Now, Declares OSU Extension Specialist

Now's a good time to restock the freezer with beef, says Mrs. Velma Seat, Oregon State university extension specialist. Beef supplies are plentiful and prices to consumers are more favorable than they probably will be for some time.

Thrifty shoppers are advised to compare prices on retail specials vs. quantity (side or quarter) purchases to be sure they get the best value for dollars spent.

Oregon Composers Urged to Take Part In Music Program

Composers and song writers from all parts of Oregon are invited to take part in the second annual "New Music" program to be presented in March by the music department of the Dayton, Ore., schools.

Designed to encourage those who write original music, this program stages songs and compositions of all types written by Oregonians.

All music submitted will be performed, including selections for choir, band, dance band, symphony orchestra, small group arrangements or solos. Songs by amateur composers unable to notate music may be submitted by tape recording and anyone wishing to perform his own music or provide performers is welcome to do so.

Compositions should be sent to Melvin Ashwill, music instructor at Dayton high school as soon as possible. None will be accepted after Jan. 10, 1964, since considerable time is needed for rehearsal and programming.

The ice cream cone originated at the St. Louis World's Fair in 1904 when an ice cream stand on a hot afternoon ran out of ice cream dishes. They asked a nearby concessionaire, whose specialty was penny waffles baked on the spot, if he would roll the waffles into a conical shape to fill them with ice cream.

Where the PROGRESS Is

The largest irrigation development during recent years in the Pacific Northwest has taken place in the Snake River Valley. It wasn't a government project!

It took place by individual effort and individual investment — by thousands of farmers clearing raw land, digging wells, installing electric pumps and planting crops.

In the past 14 years alone, the number of irrigation pumps served by Idaho Power has increased from 1,903 to 6,836 — the connected horsepower of those pumps has increased nearly ten times. Acres irrigated by electric pumping have jumped from 132,260 to 709,570.

The land irrigated by pumping within our service area is double the acreage of the widely publicized Grand Coulee project. And it was brought under cultivation without subsidy!

Low-cost electric power helped make this progress possible in the Snake River Valley. Idaho Power irrigation rates are lower than rates in any other concentrated pumping area in the west.
