Eighth Grade Hobby Club Donates After Special Education Class Visit

Hobby club members of Miss Marie Coate's eighth grade classroom decided to use their dues-and-fines money within Nyssa schools. They obtained permission to use their club time to visit during a special class taught by Miss Nelle Hayes. Each student served as a committee of one to observe class activities and the workshop.

The eighth graders appeared amazed at the independent ability of the pupils. This was shown as the students introduced themselves, led the flag salute, sang songs, followed directions and dramatized stories.

It was most interesting to see individual experience charts and to note that much of the educational program is directed toward the practical side of becoming good citizens.

During an evaluation period at the next eighth grade club meeting, the group voted to use their money in the following manner.

Approximately $20 was spent for pictures, 20 Golden Story books, small items including scented soap, hair curlers and a decorated waste basket. The gifts were presented during a second visit to the class when the children demonstrated to the visitors how ably they could cook, serve and entertain guests.

As the eighth grade students concluded their project, they felt well-rewarded for their efforts as they now realize that there are many other goals in education.
