Set it on high.
Or low.
Or a little higher than low or a teensy bit lower than high. Maybe just a smidgen above medium.
Set it anywhere you like, exactly where you like, because a gas range burner has a zillion settings.
Not just 3 or 4.
One zillion. Count 'em.

Beets Grow
Big With Simplot
Fertilizers

Applied this Fall

To produce a heavy-yielding, profitable crop of sugar beets, the fertility level of the soil must be kept high.

The ideal way to supply phosphorus is a Fall application of Simplot Triple Superphosphate, 0-45-0, plowed down to distribute it evenly through the root zone.

During the winter months the phosphate permeates the soil so the seedlings have ample phosphate available to stimulate root development and rapid growth in the Spring.

Speed up Spring work... apply Simplot Phosphate Fertilizer now.
